WASHINGTON, April 1. (P)— Filipino raiders striking savagely on the island of Mindanao, have demolished Japanese military installations in the center of the occupied Zamboanga and leveled twenty-two war-stocked warehouses and another enemy stronghold, the department reported tonight.

On the Bataan peninsula, a slashing Japanese attack last night forced American-Filipino veterans out of some advanced positions but the raiders were thrown back in fierce hand-to-hand combat short of the main lines. Enemy losses were heavy, while Lieutenant General Lathrop M. Wainwright's forces suffered only slight casualties, a communiqué said.

Warehouses Burned

One of the Mindanao raiding forces, launched from the hills near the Gulf, cost the Japanese heavily in gasoline, ammunition and millitary supplies, it was announced.
Vehicles and other heavy equipment were destroyed also when the invading raiders, catching the Japanese completely off guard, burned the warehouses. The supply base is located only twenty miles below the Japanese stronghold of Davao.

In the other spectacular raid, a unit of native Sulu troops penetrated to the heart of Zamboanga, destroying enemy machine gun nests and inflicting heavy casualties on the Japanese. The raiders in both cases escaped without the loss of a man.

Rumania To Fight Russia to Finish,
Antonescu Asserts

BERN, SWITZERLAND, April 1. (P)— Rumanian Foreign Minister
Ion Antonescu declared today that his country intends to fight Russia to the finish because it is fighting for a new state of a new human being.

He described his statement as an answer to foreign reports that his country wanted to withdraw from the war in the east and keep her troops at home.

The tone of his speech was entirely different from his declaration on March 19 in which he attacked Russia, and his comments today made no reference to the conflict over Transylvania.

Diplomatic circles interpreted this stance as a result of recent German-Italian talks.

Some people, Antonescu commented, had misunderstood the fact that Rumania was keeping silent on the Russian war.

Stilwell Leads Chinese Unit Out Of Toungoo Area

American Commander Completes Successful Withdrawal of Forces

By DANIEL DE LUCE WITH THE CHINESE ARMY ON THE TOUNGGOO FRONT, BURMA,
April 1. (P)—Under the incessant week-long blasting of Japanese dive-bombers and artillery, a Chinese garrison has slashed its way out of encircled Toungoo, forded the Sittoung river and rejoined the main Chinese armies in a bloody withdrawal action personally directed by Lieut. Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell with all the shrewd serenity of a chess-master.

This is the story of the fiercest battle yet fought in Burma:
The Japanese aiming north toward Mandalay encircled Toungoo a week ago. The Chinese garrison (reported by Chungking to have numbered 8,000 men, against 40,000 or more Japanese), was cut off from all aid but stuck to shallow trenches and pits with machine guns and rifles, staving off repeated assaults.

Stilwell Starts Action

General Stilwell, the lean, gray American commander of all Chinese forces in Burma, brought his armies from the north in an attempt to raise the siege.

For five days the counter-attack continued, but only a single convoy of ammunition got through to the Toungoo garrison. Heated by this help, the men fought on.

By Sunday, however, it became evident that Toungoo could not be relieved. Lack of air support was a vital factor.

In short-sleeves, calmly smoking a cigarette in a black holder, General Stilwell went into a huddle with his Chinese aides, his fluent Chinese audible above the clatter of nearby machine guns.

He then flashed orders by radio to the Toungoo garrison to be ready

Conscientious Objector Registers in "Ideal" Spot in Oregon

WYETH, Ore., April 1. (P)—Lew Ayres, the motion picture actor who declined to bear arms for his country, registered at a quiet conscientious objector's camp today.

Attended by a gallery which deserted a minor fire to witness his arrival, Ayres became the one hundred and seventy-first enrollee at the camp, supported and operated by the Brethren and Mennonite churches.

After luncheon, which consisted of vegetable soup, curried rice, candied cherries, coffee with condensed cream, bread and butter, Ayres remarked:

"Gee, this is an ideal spot."
He immediately was given a duty assignment. With another enrollee, Ayres will handle emergency first aid work. He will arise at 6 a. m. and will depart with work gangs in nearby timber at 7:30 o'clock, after a brief devotional period. He will report back to camp at 5 p. m., and will retire at 10 o'clock. With others, he will be allowed three short recreational leaves a week.

During some of these he hopes to climb nearby Wind Mountain.
He said he also would like to attempt to scale Mount Hood, which towers above the camp.

Ayres seemingly was accepted immediately by other men at the camp. One reported back to his fellows:

"He looks like a real guy."

Chain Theater Bans "Dr. Kildare" Films

CHICAGO, April 1. (P)—Withdrawal of all "Dr. Kildare" and subsequent films starring Lew Ayres from 100 movie houses in Chicago and Illinois cities was announced today by the Balaban and Katz Corporation and its downstate subsidiary Grand States Company.

Ayres went from Hollywood yesterday to an Oregon camp for conscientious objectors to war, at his own request.

"We are not in sympathy with Ayres's attitude and we don't believe the movie-going public is either," said John Balaban, secretary-treasurer of the movie chain.

Synthetic Rubber Information Held Up, Farish Admits

WASHINGTON, April 1. (P)—The president of Standard Oil Company (New Jersey) acknowledged today that the company failed to give all information about its synthetic rubber processes to a navy representative in 1939 but contended that the company did furnish "everything the government could make practical use of."

W. S. Farish, Standard president, made this statement after Senator O'Mahoney (D-Wyo.) had challenged his testimony that Standard gave "full information" to the army and navy "covering Standard's synthetic rubber activities."

Australian Land Forces Brought To Full Strength

Single Men 18-45 and Married 18-35 Called to Colors

U. S. and Australian Air Attacks Continue on a Large Scale

By C. YATES McDANIEL
MELBOURNE, Thursday, April 2.
(P)—All Australia's land forces were brought up to full war strength today and ordered into immediate battle training of the most intensive type so they may resist with maximum endurance the Japanese invasion which daily threatens this continent.

Single men between 18 and 45 and all married men between 18 and 35 were directed to report immediately for military service in an order issued on recommendation of General Sir Thomas Blamey, chief of all allied ground forces under the supreme commander, Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

The order came after a day of United States and Australian air attack in which the allied planes, flying through tropical storms and stiff enemy resistance, blasted the Timor-New Guinea airdromes which menace Australia from two sides, and brought to thirty-three their three-day toll of enemy aircraft put out of action.

Speed Up Mobilization

War Minister Francis M. Forde said the total mobilization ordered shortly after midnight applied to men already earmarked for military duty but who, under previous plans, would not have been called up for some time.

General Blamey said every Australian officer and enlisted man in all units now would be required to take part in the new period of intensive, supplementary training.

Blamey and all other senior officers now back to defend their homeland after the hard battles in the east and elsewhere have been instituted upon the need for hardening and training almost to the limit of the troops' endurance.

On the air front revised official figures gave this tabulation of Allied successes since Monday: Four enemy planes certainly destroyed, eighteen probably destroyed and eleven known to have been damaged.

Allies Optimistic

The almost non-stop attacks by Allied planes gave Australian and American military authorities alike a growing if still-cautious optimism over the chances of holding off the Japanese, particularly in New Guinea, where the enemy has been pinned back to a relatively impotent coastal strip on the northeast shore.

Enemy withdrawal from the Markham valley, caused both by heavy aerial blows and by the oncoming of the three-months' wet season, means the Japanese are confined to an area where, under mounting allied pressure, their position might become a highly precarious one.

Sikh Warriors Reject Plan To Aid the British

Other Groups Show Signs of Refusing Plea of Sir Stafford

British Terms Unsatisfac- tory to Large Factions of Indians

LONDON, April 1. (P)—Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru and General Sir Archibald Wavell, British commander for India, have arranged to meet for a talk on control of Indian defense, said a dispatch late tonight from New Delhi to The Daily Herald.

NEW DELHI, India, April 1. (P)—
The Sikhs, warriors of the Punjab, and the extremist Mahasabha group of Hindus tonight rejected the British plan for Indian post-war independence, and all India awaited tensely the decision of the majority All-India Congress.

In the light of expectations that the working committee of the Congress would turn down the plan because of British insistence on controlling India's war-time defense, there was an increasing awareness of the consequences of failure of Sir Stafford Cripps's mission to this sub-continent.

The deepest impression was made by strong comment of the British and United States press, pointing out that if Indian leaders, by bargaining, cause the plan to collapse, Indians will forfeit the good opinion of the United Nations.

Indians Insistent

Yet it was doubtful whether such warnings would be enough to change the Congress committee's attitude.

The average Indian Nationalist seems bewildered by what he regards as failure of Britain and the United States to understand his point of view on the need for an Indian defense council.

He argues that only an Indian can rally the country and he asks what objection there can be to placing the defense portfolio in the hands of an Indian like Captain Sir Sikander Hyat Khan, premier of the Punjab, which provides the present bulk of Indian troops.

Muslim League's Attitude

The prevalent attitude in both the Congress and the Muslim league is that Hyat Khan is intelligent enough to take advice and guidance from General Sir Archibald P.
Wavell, Britain's commander in chief for India. Even the moderates led by Sir Tej Bahadur Sapru, one of Britain's best friends in India, feel this way.

The Sikhs, numbering about 4-500,000, turned down the program through their all-parties committee for fear they would be placed at the mercy of the Muslim majority of 13,500,000 in the Punjab.

The Hindu Mahasabha group made common cause with the Sikhs because of opposition to the provision permitting formation of separate Muslim states if a single dominion is found impractical.

3 Norwegian Vessels Sunk in Dash to Sea

Seven Others May Have Been Attacked during Attempt To Escape and Reach British Port

STOCKHOLM, April 1. (P)—Ten Norwegian ships berth-ed in Sweden since the German invasion of Norway made a dash for England last night, and three of 10,000 tons each were torpedoed as soon as they cleared the limit of Sweden's territorial waters, it was disclosed tonight.

There was no immediate word regarding the other seven ships.

All had been held at Gotenborg, on Sweden's west coast, since war came to Norway. The torpedoed three were attacked just beyond the three-mile limit.

Walters' Strike
In New York Ends
After 39 Months

Mass Picket Line Kept in Operation during Entire Progress

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK, April 1. (P)—A picket announced the end of one of the strangest mass hikes in history—it was less than a block long and yet covered more than seven times the distance to the moon.

It was started almost thirty-nine months ago by several hundred employees of the Brass Rail, a Broadway restaurant in the heart of the Times Square theater district, after they walked out on strike.

They, or fellow union members, or sympathizers, kept a picket line on the march before the restaurant ever since, until the dispute was finally ironed out this morning.
The line dissolved at once, ending its siege in silence.

Priest Settles Strike

Settlement of the strike—one of the most drawn out in New York labor history—was announced by the Rev. John Boland, amiable head of the State Labor Relations Board.

Father Boland declined to give the terms in detail, but said that the management and the Hotel and Restaurant Employees International Alliance (AFL) had signed a three year contract banning strikes or lockouts and providing for the arbitration of any future differences.

Man Who 'Sighted' Sub, Sank Same' Does It Again

Naval Pilot Awarded Second Distinguished Flying Cross

Navy Reports Sinking of Three U-Boats for a Total of 28

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER WASHINGTON, April 1. (P)—Donald Francis Mason, the naval enlisted pilot who recently "sighted" sub, sank same, has done it again, the navy announced today, and for his unprecedented double success has been awarded the equivalent of a second distinguished flying cross and given an officer's commission.

Mason's second successful attack was one of three submarine sinkings reported by the navy today. The three, two in the Atlantic and one in the Pacific, raised to a grand total of twenty-eight, the number of Axis undersea craft announced as "sunk or presumed sunk" by United States military and naval forces thus far in the war. Of this total, twenty-one were blasted in the Atlantic and seven in the Pacific.

Others Believed Sunk

In addition to these, the navy asserted that "there is evidence of additional sinkings of Axis under-sea craft" in its campaign against merchant shipping raiders. But it said no claims would be made to these until they are absolutely certain and until the news will be of "no possible use to the enemy."

Meantime, ship sinkings by Axis subs continued off the Atlantic coast. The navy announced the torpedoing of a medium-sized Panamanian merchant vessel, and it was disclosed that thirteen of its crewmen, weak and numb from ex-posure, were landed at Norfolk, Va., Saturday night.

A rescue vessel picked them up after they had drifted for forty-five hours in one lifeboat and two rafts. Two others of the crew were

Complacency in U. S. Shocks Philippine Commission Heads

SAN FRANCISCO, April 1. (P)— Staff members of the United States high commissioner to the Philippines, returning from the southwest Pacific war zone, reported today they were "shocked at the complacency in the states."

Ranking members of Commissioner Francis B. Sayre's staff, his wife and son, arrived on a transport after a circuitous journey from the Philippines, accomplished without incident.

Staff members who underwent frequent bombing and shelling in the islands reported "the absence of a consciousness of war here is shocking."

"The shock of discovering that people here have little conception that a vast war is being fought on an intense scale far overshadows our tremendous relief and exhilitation of returning safely."

The comment came from a ranking member of Sayre's staff who asked that his name be omitted.

Russians and Germans in Titanic Battle All along Gigantic Front

By WILLIAM J. HUMPHREYS
LONDON, April 1. (P)—Bitter fighting now under way in the Donets Basin on Russia's southern front was reported tonight to be gradually developing into a titanic clash which ultimately may determine the outcome of 1942's warm weather operations on the entire Russian-German battlefield.

Dispatches from both Moscow and Berlin indicated that the entire front from Leningrad to the Black Sea now is locked in a see-saw struggle, with both the Russian and the German high commands moving masses of reserves into the central and southern zones.

Predictions Difficult

In view of this, London observers found it difficult to predict that either side could develop any lightning spring offensive.

Rather, they preferred to view the current action in the Donets Basin, where the roads are now drying steadily, as pivotal fighting holding the key to the entire warm weather situation for the remainder of the year. The side winning the advantage here is expected to prevail.

Incessant German counterattacks to recover lost ground and relieve the encircled Nazi Sixteenth army in the Staraya Russa sector on the northwestern front are stressed in reports from Stockholm.

These reports state that the beleaguered German force, which originally numbered 100,000 men,

Gigantic Flying Boat Nearly in Shape for Tests

Mars Needs only a Few Parts before Taking to the Air

BALTIMORE, April 1 (AP)—Only a few minor parts stand between the world's largest flying boat and a test flight.

Glen L. Martin company officials announced today the Mars, a seventy-ton air battleship, would be flown sometime this month. No delay in delivery of the needed parts was anticipated, it was added.

Damage the ship suffered in its first water test Dec. 5 has been repaired and the test crew for the initial flights has been chosen. The delay before a new test was caused by the thorough check for any possible damage.

A propeller blade snapped Dec. 5, wrenching one of the four engines from its nacelle. Oil and fuel, spilled as the No. 3 engine was torn out, burned on the water and did serious damage.

William K. Edel, vice president in charge of engineering and chief test pilot, said engineers and laboratory experts went over the flying monster in a thorough check of every part.

Edel will be at the controls when the Mars is flown this month. His chief assistants will be Ellis D. Shannon and William R. Turner, co-pilots; Benjamin Zelubowski, flight engineer, and William Street and Al Joyce, test engineers.

New Draftees May Be Called Early

Headquarters Says Some of Them Will Be in Camps in May

WASHINGTON, April 1 (AP)—Draft headquarters served notice today that some of the men who registered Feb. 16 may be summoned to training camps in May, and that June most probably would see a portion of them in the service.

Those who registered on that date were men between 35 and 44 inclusive and those who had become 20 and 21 in the recently preceding months. A lottery determining the order of their liability for service was conducted March 17.

The army's intent regarding this group was made plain in selective service order to all local draft boards. They were told to start classifying the new registrants immediately and prepare to fill the June call, and possibly the May call, in part from them.

This clarified an uncertainty as to whether these men would be lumped with the earlier registrants and become subject to early call or whether the army would exhaust the first group before tapping the second.

The method of coordinating the two groups is to be explained in detail in a later announcement. As recently outlined, the plan is as follows: After the men have been classified, a local board determines how many from each group are I-A. If it has, for example, sixty I-A men from the first group and forty from the second, all calls from the army for new men are filled sixty per cent from the first and forty per cent from the second.

"Just about that, huh?" asked the interviewer.

"Just about," came the reply.

Sonny Divorces Slason For Fourth Time

LOS ANGELES, April 1 (AP)—Sonny DeLane, pretty blonde fashion model, obtained her fourth divorce today from Orville Slason and this time, she says, it's going to stick.

Slason, a navy construction specialist, was not in court. That may account for his ex-wife's confidence.

Because, she said, whenever she got a divorce before, he would come to court in a brand new suit, hold her hand, and urge her to return to him.

"He never would wear the clothes I wanted him to," she testified, "except when I got a divorce. Then he would put his best foot forward and give me a big smile, and we'd be right back where we started."

90 Baltimore Trash Collectors End Strike

BALTIMORE, April 1 (AP)—A strike by ninety city trash collectors, caused indirectly by the snow-removal task, ended quickly today.

Contending they should receive overtime pay for doing work of crews diverted temporarily to snow clearance, the men struck this morning. They returned later to their jobs when union representatives said their grievance would be settled within two days.

Spokesmen for the truckmen held the contract between the municipal chauffeurs, helpers and garage employees' union and the city provided overtime pay if collectors were assigned to extra tasks.

Norwegian Teachers Sentenced to Jail

BERN, SWITZERLAND, April 1 (AP)—Seventy per cent of all Norwegian high school teachers are in jail and "the situation is getting worse," a Stockholm dispatch to the national Zeitung of Basel said today.

So many teachers have been arrested that it is considered impossible to open schools for the spring term, the dispatch continued.

Uniform for Girl Soldiers Tough Problem for Army

They Want Girdles and Other Things Men Do Not Understand

By RUTH COWAN
WASHINGTON, April 1 (AP)—Army officers shy off discussing it, but a woman clothing consultant has been called in to help military designers with a problem in er-er-feminine unmentionables that they overlooked in thinking up snappy uniforms for the women's auxiliary army corps.

The army, which prides itself on being prepared for any emergency, was naturally considering designs for the girls uniforms, so the latter couldn't claim "they hadn't a thing to wear." If and when the bill setting up the auxiliary corps is finally passed by Congress.

Real Facts Leak Out
But, it has leaked out, the designers overlooked the fact that women wear such items as girdles, panties and bras. Nor did they remember night gowns or pajamas.

The rumor is that the subject came up when some woman inquired if the soldierettes would be issued girdles. It said that this resulted in some hasty red-faced conferences in high-ranking army officialdom.

When the generals got to discussing it, it was realized that it would be difficult for the doughty girls to buy their underthings out of their $21 a month.

This prompted other worries. Army designers really have been trying to fashion a uniform that women would "just love to wear." They probably had visions of women, used to wearing tea-rose satin nightgowns and pink sheer panties, declining to volunteer because they didn't like the underwear.

Call for Help
It was enough to make strong men shudder! It was no time at all until some strong male remarked it was past time to call in female help.

What is being decided in the way of underthings is something of a military secret. The best that can be learned is that they likely will be of cotton. Whether the soldierettes will get girdles or have to get curve-control by exercise is also in the dark.

Then began seven long days and nights with thirteen men trying to live on a few biscuits and an insufficient amount of water.

At first, the 53-year-old captain said, the men allowed themselves one biscuit a day but soon reduced the ration to one-half biscuit.

Chewed Wood from Raft
"When the water ran out," Henriksen continued, "we whittled off bits of wood from the raft and chewed on them."

On the fourth day the chief engineer died and was buried at sea. Henriksen said he would go back to sea "of course."

The Gummy survivors were rescued on March 9 by a Swedish ship and were taken to Progresso, Mexico.

For two seasons the chanting human chain, carrying brightly lettered signs as it marched in endless circle, mystified World Fair crowds unaccustomed to big-scale picketing.

In their last brush with the police the pickets saw with sorrow a huge cake baked to celebrate the 1,000th day of the strike spilled to the pavement and mashed to pieces by skidding pedestrians.

Last January union statisticians estimated the pickets had worn out 7,264 pairs of shoes and walked 1,728,000 miles.

Six German Planes Bagged near Malta

VALETTA, MALTA, April 1 (AP)—Six German planes were shot down, at least three damaged and a number of others probably damaged during heavy sustained attacks on this British Mediterranean island base today.

The RAF, without loss, shot down three planes and anti-aircraft batteries bagged the others.

A communiqué tonight said: "There have been eight alerts during the last twenty-four hours, some of several hours' duration. With improvement in the weather the Luftwaffe has returned to mass attacks with bomber formations strongly protected by fighters, notwithstanding which our Hurricanes and Spitfires continuously attacked the enemy bombers. There were some civilian casualties and property damage."

Yugoslav Fliers Arrive To Seek American Help

Ask Supplies and Arms for Use against the Germans

WASHINGTON, April 1 (AP)—Eleven husky Yugoslav airmen filled with a burning desire to avenge the Nazi invasion of their country have just arrived here to seek American aid for the Serbian Chetniks still harassing Axis forces by periodic raids from mountain hide-aways in Yugoslavia.

Col. Dragutin Savich, acting commanding officer of the Yugoslav air forces and head of the newly-arrived mission, told reporters today that the guerrilla warriors and loyal regulars under general Draza Mahailovic in South Serbia and Bosnia were in an "anemic state" and needed a "blood transfusion."

Col. Savich said supplies could be flown to Yugoslav registers, whom he placed at 100,000 men, by long-range planes taking off from Syria and dropping food and war equipment by parachute.

He added that it was not only "extremely necessary" to get supplies to Mahailovic, whose year-long stand against invasion he likened to General Douglas MacArthur's resistance on Bataan, but the United Nations should "proceed on a fixed plan of development of the war in all theaters."

This should include, he said, a "general operation to ameliorate the situation in the Mediterranean war area."

He said the mission came here from the middle east via London and would explore with United Nations military experts all the possibilities for keeping Germany diverted in the Balkans as she plans her spring offensive.

Man Who 'Sighed'

known dead and thirty-eight presumed lost.

Adrift Seven Days
At New York, the captain of a Norwegian freighter, the 2,362-ton Gummy, told how he and eleven other survivors drifted for seven days on a raft after his ship was torpedoed in the South Atlantic March 2.

In a speech at Elizabeth City, N. C., Rear Admiral M. H. Simons, commander of the Fifth naval district, asserted that while the Atlantic sinkings represented a blow "in a very vital spot," he could honestly assert "that the Axis has paid a terrible price in both submarines and men."

Silver Star for Mason
Mason, 28-year-old Rochester, Minn., man, who sank two submarines in the Atlantic area, was promoted to ensign, the starting commission rank, and was awarded a silver star to add to his distinguished flying cross, previously given for his first sinking.

Both the other sinkings disclosed today were also due primarily to air action. One of these was accomplished chiefly by Ensign William Tepuni, 26, naval reserve pilot of San Francisco, Calif., and was in the Atlantic area. Vice Admiral Royal E. Ingersoll, commander of the Atlantic fleet, awarded Tepuni the distinguished flying cross for his exploit.

The other, in the Pacific, was effected by First Lieutenant James Valentine Edmundson, 26, of Santa Monica, Calif., an army flier, Navy secretary Knox commended Edmundson for the "keen observation, flying skill and successful attack with bombs" involved in his feat.

Recalls First Success
Mason's first success had been announced February 26. This he tersely reported to his base in the message, "sighted sub, sank same."

Giving more details of this incident today, the navy said that Mason was on a routine patrol flight when he spotted a submarine cruising at periscope depth. He dived and dropped two bombs at a low altitude, straddling the periscope. The sub was blown partially out of the water and then sank and soon afterward a large patch of oil covered the area.

It was also a patrol flight that led to the second attack. Again Mason swooped down and released depth charges. All charges hit and the U-boat blew up, scattering wreckage over a large area.

The same day—date unannounced—that Mason scored again, Tepuni sighted another submarine, whether it was in the same general sector of Atlantic war or in some other the navy did not say. Tepuni bombed the U-boat until it lay helpless on the surface.

Details Kept Secret
The next day, the navy said, destroyers "moved in for the kill." Edmundson's citation merely credited him with "distinguished service in the line of his profession by sinking an enemy submarine in the Hawaiian area" and no other details were given.

The navy first said that the Mason and Tepuni attacks "bring to twenty-one the number of enemy submarine sinkings formally announced by the navy," adding that "this figure does not include four credited to the army." Later the navy total was officially changed to twenty-four "sunk and presumed sunk."

Locations of the submarines successfully attacked in the Atlantic have not been divulged, but in the Pacific, the Japanese, according to various official announcements, have lost one off the west coast, two at Pearl Harbor, two in the Marshall Islands, one at Wake Island and one in the Hawaiian area.

21 Musicians aboard the Arizona Killed during Pearl Harbor Attack

HELD ON 3 CHARGES

HONOLULU, April 1 (AP)—All twenty-one musicians in the U.S.S. Arizona band were killed in the explosion of that battleship's magazine while they were passing ammunition to the guns above during the Pearl Harbor attack of Dec. 7, naval authorities revealed today.

The Arizona was destroyed in the Japanese sneak attack.

The navy issued this statement:

"What becomes of the boys in the band when the guns begin to roar?"

"Many a civilian has asked that question."

"The most dramatic answer has been furnished by the incident of the ship's band of the battleship Arizona."

"On Dec. 7 they went to their battle stations, one of the most hazardous on the ship—down below passing ammunition to the guns above. To a man the Arizona's band was killed when the battleship's magazine exploded."

"Part of the program of recreation at Pearl Harbor last year was 'the battle of music, 1941.' The bands of the ships in port contested. One of the best and near the top in the scoring when the war began was the band of the Arizona. When its total loss was discovered the other contestants unanimously agreed to award posthumously to the Arizona's band the trophy at stake. Henceforth the trophy will be known as the Arizona trophy. After the war it will be put up again to be challenged when the battle of music is resumed."

"Members of the Arizona's band whose names are on the plaque are:

"F. W. Kinney, bandmaster; A. J. Nadel, W. L. Bandy, O. M. Brabbs, N. F. Radford, J. L. Scruggs, E. H. Whitson, C. J. Haas, F. N. Fiege, C. C. Cox, C. W. White, W. S. Morehouse, C. R. Williams, R. W. Burdette, R. K. Shaw, B. T. Hughes, W. M. McCarty, J. H. Sanderson, W. R. Hurley, H. G. Chernucha, and E. I. Lynch."

Statement by Bittner
"There has been some newspaper talk of internal trouble in district 17 of the United Mine Workers."

"I don't know about this. I'm not interested in the welfare of Van A. Bittner, I'm interested in the welfare of my country and my people. If ever there was a time when we needed harmony in the ranks of labor, it is now."

"And all I've got to say on this issue is to say to those bearers of rumor that they come out in the open and fight like men."

The reports have been that President John L. Lewis of the mine workers and Bittner are divided on policy, and that Bittner might possibly be replaced.

Murray, also frequently mentioned as one of those toward whom Lewis has developed coolness, said nothing about such matters, although those who heard him in an address at Welch noted he did not mention the UMWA chieftain's name.

Says Labor Must Unite
The CIO president stressed in his speech that "it is incumbent upon labor, whether CIO or AFL, to collaborate to destroy its enemies."

Referring to what he termed a "blitzkrieg" in Congress against the forty-hour week, Murray added that "many things we have gained are being placed in jeopardy by interests who would like to take away from labor the things it has gained."

Bittner at Oak Hill made reference to a United Mine Workers' loan of more than $1,000,000 to the CIO, for which Lewis is reported to have asked repayment lately.

Without referring to the UMWA president, Bittner asserted: "Every dollar we have given to the CIO to build unions in this country has come back to us tenfold. And who knows, the day may come when the United Mine Workers will look to these other CIO unions for assistance."

to crash through the Japanese lines at a specified point on the north-east.

He moved his relief forces in a southerly direction, drawing off considerable Japanese strength to meet his feint. The British imperials in the Irrawaddy valley farther west also began an attack to divert as much Japanese pressure as possible.

Yesterday, the scene was set and the Chinese in Toungoo dashed from their tree-screened positions out into the open.

Japanese artillery laid down a blanketing fire, but the Chinese scattered and pressed on, splashed and swam across the Sittang under point-blank shelling, and reached the sanctuary of the farther hills through fields littered with Japanese dead.

Now the Chinese lines stand twelve miles north of Toungoo, around the smouldering ruins of the Nanyun railway station, which is a half-mile west of the Burma road and five miles south of Yedash.

General Stilwell came to the front in an American armored scout car with First Lieut. Carl Arnold, one-time Los Angeles music instructor, and Sergeant Francis Astolfi, of Wilkes-Barre, Pa.

Both carried sub-machine guns, but they had no occasion to use them, because the Chinese surrounded Stilwell with a strong escort of their own.

Here at the front, when Japanese planes interrupt conferences or inspections, Stilwell takes cover without missing a beat of his rhythmic gum-chewing.

Miami Darkened For Duration as Army Moves In

Bright Lights of Famous Resort City Will Not Shine for Months

By FRED L. STROZIER
MIAMI BEACH, Fla., April 1 (AP)—The bright lights of this glittering resort have been dimmed for the duration.

A tourist season that started before Pearl Harbor has run its course with a normal amount of play in night clubs, on golf courses, tennis courts, in oceanfront pools and cabana colonies.

Now Miami Beach is in the army. Most of the hotels in a twenty-four block strip running south from Thirty-First street have been leased for an army air corps technical training camp. Twenty-four others have signed up. Many already will join the program.

The resort has hotel and apartment space for about 100,000 tourists. The air corps, already on the training job, is making plans to house 30,000 men at the peak of the program. It will double the population of the city, which has an official year-round count of 26,000 residents.

Miami Beach proper has 329 hotels, of which about forty per cent will be used by the army. Many of the remainder will stay open throughout the year. They expect to draw thousands of families here to enjoy vacations and visit their sons and husbands who are in the training camps.

Beach officialdom agrees that the customary tourist business is finished until after the war.

Hit Savage Blows

regior and the dive-bombing of Bataan front lines continued, but caused only slight damage. Artillery fire from naval units and shore batteries accompanied the air attacks.

Japanese Hurl Back
Early today land fighting on Bataan died away to occasional sharp patrol clashes after waves of Japanese assault troops, supported by heavy mortar fire, had been hurled at the right center of the defense lines in the jungle north and west of Abucay. The line there forms the eastern anchor of the defense positions on the shore of Manila bay.

Defending their outposts with fierce bayonet fighting, Walwright troops were pushed slowly back until reinforcements were brought up, and the enemy drive was stalled after several hours of fierce hand-to-hand fighting.

Real Test of Strength
Although described as a heavy attack, the enemy assault, following a week of almost incessant bombing attacks of varying intensity on the Bataan positions and the Manila Bay forts, was regarded in military circles here as a test of the strength of Walwright's lines rather than as the start of the long expected decisive battle for the Philippines.

When that drive comes, observers believe it will be marked by frontal assaults along the entire Bataan line, accompanied by attempts to land large forces on the flanking shore lines with the support of naval units and all the air strength the Japanese command in the Philippines can assemble. The aerial bombardment and last night's Bataan attack, however, are regarded as indications that Lieutenant General Tomoyuki Yamashita, the Japanese commander, is preparing for a large-scale offensive before the start of the rainy season, due in about a month.

Walwright reported to the department also that the bombing of a base hospital in Bataan, announced yesterday, brought a formal apology from the Japanese Imperial high command in the Philippines. A Japanese army spokesman said in a radio broadcast that the bombing, which resulted in a number of casualties, was not intentional.

Those Post-War Considerations

MUCH has been written and said about the usefulness and the utility of planning a post-war program for the nation. There has been, however, no widespread concern among the people over the subject for the apparent reason that they feel the uppermost consideration now is winning the war. They have also thought that when and if that is done there will be ample opportunity to look after reconstruction when the chickens are hatched, and that it will be better anyway not to waste efforts and means now in wartime to cope with uncertain conditions. These may be entirely different from what even the most present consideration can foresee.

For those who may have been concerned over the planning and the propaganda of New Dealers in government places looking to preservation and perpetuation of their so-called reforms, there is reassurance in what Charles P. Stewart, one of the Washington correspondents of the News, says about the prospects.

Some have feared the New Deal has obtained such a clinch hold on government that it will be impossible to shake it loose for anything which experience shall have proved, as it has already been proving in many instances, may be better. But Stewart doesn't think so unless there should be a termination of the war in the near future, something of which no signs have appeared on the horizon. In such case he says we shall have so much of the New Deal complex left in our systems that it will probably reassert itself. But if the strife strings out for some time, which appears most likely, Stewart declares that its philosophy "will play itself out, most of its agencies will be abolished, as a termination of 'em is being sought already, and some sort of new system will evolve itself for the ultimate by-and-by."

It is admitted that there will be a fearfully painful readjustment period ahead, but it must be taken for granted that the American people will have learned enough from experience to be able to cope with it adequately and successfully.

Shewart points out a significant straw-in-the-wind in the nature of the widespread reaction to Attorney General Francis Biddle's recent warning to the nation not to forget the necessities of a "normalcy" to come, that the future's peacetime can be perfectly well provided for in wartime simultaneously with today's, of a defensive and offensive character. In other words, that we can and must scheme to continue the New Deal regardless.

Now, if there had been a general indorsement of that proposition, it would have been New Dealerish enough, but Stewart reports that the immediate response, from a considerable number of sources, was anything but New Dealerish. The response was, in effect, that the attorney general was "Biddling," while not only Rome but every other place on earth was burning up. And that expression (Biddling), Stewart says, made an instantaneous hit.

It is safe to assume that any new system which Stewart sees in development to supplant the New Deal will and must be based upon enduring principles of truth, justice and equality for all rather than in any scheme of class privilege such as has been fostered by political selfishness and power-lust. If Americans are now fighting for their freedoms, they can be expected to look for the sure preservation of them in the post-war period on a sound and solid basis, such as was contemplated in the great American constitution, which, unhappily, has been twisted out of place in too many instances during the last few years.

So, let the prophets of gloom as to the American future take a hitch in their britches and note that the sun will in all probability be coming up over the eastern hills at dawn as in the past. This American way of life we have so much enjoyed and appreciate just can't be put down.

Our Shipping Situation

MARK SULLIVAN in his dispatch on this page today records apprehension over cargo ship sinkings and stresses what appears to be the urgent need for speeding our shipbuilding program.

There is, however, some gleam of hopefulness to be seen piercing these gloomy clouds. There is the calm and considered opinion of American naval experts who say that three months of sea war in the Pacific has produced positive evidence that, qualitatively, American ships and men can outmatch Japanese men and ships.

It has been known all along that the potential and eventual ship production of this nation would exceed all others. Now the nation is assured that American workmanship, too, is superior.

American shipyards are now reported to be a year ahead of the 1946-47 original deadline for a self-sufficient two-ocean navy.

But, with respect to the deadly under-sea rattlesnakes that have been wreaking such havoc in the Atlantic, there seems more to overcome than the relatively inferior Japanese naval efforts. So, while we have been doing well with our shipbuilding, let there be speed and more speed in it, as Sullivan counsels.

America has the way to win if it utilizes the will. The next few months will probably be the toughest ones for us, with both Japan and Germany aiming for knockouts this summer, and with this big easy-going democracy just beginning to discipline itself to war skipping. But it will come smiling through in the end.

The Parking Meter Trend

PARKING METERS appear to be justifying themselves, according to an interesting report coming to hand. This shows that 125 cities installed them last year in their "heavy parking" districts, increasing the total number approximately sixty per cent over the preceding year.

The number of municipalities now using parking meters to relieve traffic congestion was 347 as of February 1, 1942, according to the survey. Twelve cities, including Lorain, O.; Rutland, Vt., and Winston-Salem, N. C., are scheduled to install meters soon.

The 1941 increase in the use of metered parking continues an uptrend from the first installations of the device in three cities in 1935. By 1939 a total of 141 cities had meters. Eighty-one cities added them in 1940, 110 in 1941, and fifteen in the first month of 1942. Two-thirds of all cities between 25,000 and 50,000 population have made installations.

Typical average monthly revenue of one meter for the sample month of October, 1941, was $6.15, according to the survey. Meter revenue in cities of various sizes ranged from an average of $3.02 in cities under 5,000 population to $8.29 in cities over 50,000.

Perhaps the most significant phase of the report is that while a majority of the meters require a nickel coin, an increasing number of cities, especially the smaller ones, are installing penny meters.

The Red Cross Attains Its War Fund Goal

PEOPLE of Allegany county will be gratified to know that the $65,000,000 war fund sought by the American Red Cross has been over-subscribed and that contributions are still coming in.

In announcing this result, President Roosevelt, who is president of the Red Cross, made note of a letter from Norman Davis, its chairman, which recalled a presidential proclamation of December 7 asking for a $50,000,000 war fund. This sum was on hand by February 7, Davis said, and the Red Cross then asked that the objective be raised by $15,000,000 to meet increased needs.

As Davis stated, the attainment of this higher goal is proof both of the vitality of the Red Cross and the willingness of the American people to sacrifice for this great humanitarian organization.

Despite those enormous, buck teeth there is reason to believe that the Jap has bitten off far more than he can chew.

There has been a dearth of reports of Jap generals committing suicide lately. But this is still regarded as a good idea.

The Chiseler

By MARSHALL MASLIN

I suppose you know what a Chiseler is? If you don't, if you have never met a Chiseler, I hope you never do.

He's a man—or a woman—who thinks the quickest way to get ahead is by pulling somebody down.

He comes into your office, into your organization, and gets a job. He has an easy smile, a smooth tongue, an ingratiating personality. Frequently he has ability, and he wins his way quickly. Is he satisfied with that? He is not—he starts "chiseling."

At first you don't know he is chiseling, undermining the people around him. But when the atmosphere of the place changes and becomes suspicious, quarrelsome and nagging, you know he's at his work. . . . He says, "Jones is a fine fellow, but—" He whispers, "Miss Brown does her work very capably, except for one thing. Have you noticed—" He finds that one weak spot in everybody and points it out in a gentle, half-apologetic way. He kills confidence and cuts down his fellows, and he hopes that when they go out, hell go up. He climbs over the dead and the dying to a better job.

The Chiseler isn't as unusual as you may think. He's an unhappy fellow with a mean streak in him. Or he's stupid and knows no better. Did you ever watch a strong young cuckoo bird pushing and shoving a young robin out of his nest to die on the ground below? It's not a pretty sight, I'll tell you, but it's much pleasanter and far more understandable than the sight of a Chiseler at work, clutching and clawing to get himself a better job. A Chiseler who is as able as any other man but prefers to use his Poison rather than his Honest Ability.

Many a Chiseler does not seem to know what he does. After he gets on top, he makes fine speeches about Hard Work and Loyalty and Integrity and doesn't suspect that he is such a faker. . . . I don't know just what can be done about the Chiselers who do their dirty work outside of us, but I do know that most of us carry a Chiseler within us who is far more subtle and poisonous.

Neither will that Chiseler let us be happy. He's ever at the elbow of our confidence, telling us how small we are, how sure we are to fail. If we are happy, he reminds us of some miserable thing we did long, long ago. If we think we did a good job once, he suggests how much better it could have been done. He gives us no peace, he will not let us alone. He chisels the heart out of us and kills all our joy in living. . . . He's the lowest of all the vicious breed.

Strong Leadership Is Great Need Now, Gen. Johnson Says

By GEN. HUGH S. JOHNSON

WASHINGTON, April 1.—It seems to me that there is almost nothing within reason that our more than 130,000,000 people can't do if they are organized to act as a team and given leadership to show them the way to do it.

They are so intelligent, enthusiastic and eager that the mental side of the job is half done before we start. The President is clearly right in saying there should be "more parades." At this stage of the job—or far earlier—it must have an inspirational background. He is doubtless thinking, a little wistfully perhaps, of his own glorious first "one hundred days" when he came to office to find a discouraged dispirited people so frequently defrauded in frustration and delay over so many years, that millions of them had given up hope that "anything could be done about it" and were grimly and hopelessly waiting in a sort of stupor, like a man who has surrendered to some grisly tragic inescapable fate.

He is remembering, I think, the national thrill that answered his bold slogan, "There is nothing to fear but fear itself," and the galvanic action that followed his succession of bold steps against disaster.

One Great Unit

There were parades then—some of the greatest ever held in this country. We were acting as one great unit marshalled as a single army and we wanted to give some expression to every man's desire to have some part in the great battle.

He went on the air one night and asked for a voluntary agreement of each employer separately to covenant with him to shorten hours, raise wages, abolish child labor and to join in collective bargaining with labor. There was an almost ninety-seven and one-half percent favorable response and we made the greatest recovery in the shortest time in our economic history.

There was inspired leadership, universal confidence in that leadership and a simple organization for action. Do we have it now? We have it not.

I am very sure, from my mail and popular press and other comment, that there is not, as I once believed, any complacency in either the people or the Congress or any failure to recognize the extent and nearness of our danger.

Feeling of Helplessness

But I am equally sure that the great mass of men are bewildered, lacking in confidence and feeling helpless to aid, because there is not organization for them to join and, in the main, they are not told what they may be privileged to do as their own contribution under the old NRA slogan:

"We do our part."

They are alert enough. There has hardly been a single important reform or improvement in our bungling war effort that has not come from popular pressure exerted through Congress, rather than through executive leadership.

Delegation of power, unity of command, setting aside of outworn methods and outworn men, some attempt to control price inflation and many other obvious changes—all have been made reluctantly. They have been made almost entirely as a result of editorial criticism slowly filtering through to the people, and at length resulting in indignant popular demand.

Things Lacking

Organization of the population to act as one, leadership to show it the way, inspiration to spark the effort—these have been lacking and, as a result, we are prepared to be effective at only a fraction of our potential strength.

Now the kind of criticism that has been our only spur to action is being answered by halfhearted name-calling—"sixth columnists" and the like, censorship threatens more and more to tighten.

To question the wisdom of executive decision is said to aid and comfort the enemy and shake confidence in the government. It is a

Increased Cargo Sinkings Show Urgent Need of Greater Shipbuilding Program

By MARK SULLIVAN

Prime Minister Churchill publicly, and other British and American sources privately, feel concern about shipping.

Mr. Churchill's statement in London last week, was: "The battle of the Atlantic is now . . . worsened."

By "worsened," Mr. Churchill means merely that sinkings of American and British cargo ships, by Axis submarines and planes, have increased. But these sinkings are not, at this time, a complete barometer of the shipping situation—and the new seriousness of it. To understand, it is necessary to consider the shipping situation as a whole, and as affected by recent turns the war has taken.

As to sinkings, the current figure is not known to the public—both the British and ourselves, for good reasons, ceased giving out the figures some time ago. There is a rough figure which in many quarters has been taken as a kind of weather vane. It arose during the Great War. At that time, if sinkings were above 500,000 tons a month, the situation was regarded as serious, indeed fatal, for if sinkings kept up at that rate for month after month, Britain could hardly survive. But if sinkings were materially less than that figure, there was no feeling of desperation.

Appointment to a draft board is a high honor, yet the care involved are so numerous that few have sought the distinction. A great many members, probably a majority, have actually been "drafted" for the work, consenting to serve only because they realized a job had to be done and that a conscientious, patriotic citizen does not have the right to refuse his services in time of need.

Strict federal rules define their duties, but, of necessity, many things are left to their personal judgment. Even here they are under oath to hold the national interest paramount. Were they to be influenced by personalities they would not only violate their oath, but would also become liable to severe penalties.

Most of the selectees go willingly and gladly, but there are bound to be cases in which bitterness will last a lifetime and no patient explanation will make any difference.

Recruiting For NYA

From the Pittsburgh Press

The more we hear about the National Youth Administration, the more positively we feel that it ought to be abolished. Not cut down, or reformed, or given a new name or new boss. Abolished.

In Pittsburgh, NYA, in its zeal to corral boys and girls for its earn-while-you-learn classes in defense training, has sent high-pressure sales letters to midyear graduates of the high schools, including sons of the very well-to-do.

It appears that NYA doesn't care whether a boy already has a job, or whether he is rich or poor. Its interest seems to be primarily in signing them up, and the fewer questions asked the better.

The same training that NYA offers is available in the regular vocational schools—although, to be sure, without the attraction of pay checks from Washington. And there is much evidence that these schools do a better job of instruction than NYA.

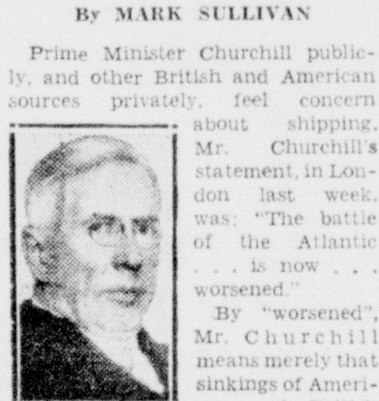

NYA is a relic of the era of unemployment. Our present emergency is a horse of a different color. And there is no proper place in the war effort for an agency which so blatantly seeks to justify an unjustifiable existence by pressing its bounties on boys who are neither unemployed nor needy.

Building Is Inadequate

But it is idle to speak of "lanes." Literally, all the waters in the world must be guarded by us and Britain. And it is misleading to regard sinkings as an index. We have been thinking of our shipping problem in terms fantastically out of date. We must think of it in terms of vastly increased new construction. The program President Roosevelt set down for 1942, eight million tons, is, in the light of present conditions, quite inadequate. If we maintain a great fighting force across the Pacific, in Australia and the Far East, as we are now committed to; and if in addition we maintain a fighting force across the Atlantic, in Europe, North Africa or elsewhere, we shall need cargo shipping far beyond what is now imagined.

Something is to be said on the hopeful side. Japan has a serious shipping problem, and is less able to meet it than we. Pre-war figures gave Japan a total cargo shipping of some six million tons, and an annual building capacity of some half a million tons. Already, she must have lost half a million tons or more. In her now expanded empire, composed of islands and territories separated by water, she desperately needs ships. Shipping might be her Achilles heel.

It Happened In Seattle

From the Cincinnati Times-Star

Recent congressional by-elections have disclosed a consistent Republican trend. This has now appeared in the municipal elections of one of the big Pacific Coast cities—Seattle, whose 1940 population of 368,000 has been swollen by an influx of workers in the shipyards and airplane factories to probably more than 400,000. It had a mayoralty election this month which was expected to go to Earl Millikin, Democratic incumbent, by default. However, the charge had been made that he was Dave Beck's man. That rough-riding labor boss made the mistake of endorsing him a week before the election. As a result, his Republican opponent, Police Judge Devin, who apparently had filed mainly as a matter of form, was elected by a majority of 20,000.

The incident is not to be hailed as exclusively or even chiefly a party victory, but as a demonstration that voters—an important majority of them—are in mood to support labor leaders, of the arrogant, swash-buckling type so well represented by Dave Beck, just where they get off.

Comparison Needed
Compare Britain's shipping situation during the Great War with her situation, and ours, today. Then, she had only one principal sea lane to be concerned about, the one between Britain and the United States, and perhaps to South America. She had no concern whatever about the Mediterranean—hardly a ship was sunk in that sea during the Great War; in the latter part of the Great War, Britain had Italy as an ally. She had little concern about submarines in the Indian Ocean and the Pacific, for Japan, was her ally—in those oceans the only damage done was by a few harried German raiders. Finally, and importantly, the plane as a threat to shipping did not exist during the Great War.

With that comparative immunity, compare the situation today. There are now at least six major sea lanes for Britain and the United States to guard. There is the lane from the United States to Britain, which is also the lane to our outpost in Iceland, and to Russia—this lane constantly under attack by German submarines, planes and raiders. There is Britain's lane from her home ports to North Africa and other points in the Mediterranean, constantly subject to attack by German and Italian submarines and planes. There is our lane from the United States to Australia—now a life-line for the United Nations—subject to attack by the Japanese. There is the lane from the United States to the Indian Ocean, by which we try to supply China and Russia. There is our own lane to South America, from which we need vital supplies. There is even our own home coastal lane between our Atlantic ports and the Gulf of Mexico and the Caribbean, now subject to intense attack.

Government Goes After the Nazi Spy System Here

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, April 1.—The surprising discovery of two American ship survivors that a Nazi U-boat commander knew the contents and destination of their ill-fated freighter was no surprise within officialdom here.

This government has known for some time the existence of an elaborate German spy system reporting to Berlin speedily and efficiently on American ships.

The system is working in such an open field and was organized with such usual German thoroughness that it has been found difficult to smash.

The FBI raided the German Seamen's home in Hoboken last Saturday and found again how some news was sent out. What was described as a "diathermy machine" was seized, along with seventy-one inmates.

This is a piece of common electrical apparatus, capable of creating high frequency oscillations, which could be heard as far away as Germany if proper reception, through a similar set, had been provided there as it no doubt has.

Sold Everywhere

The apparatus, which can make intelligible short wave vibrations, under expert handling, has been sold commercially throughout the country for therapeutic treatment of skin tissues by heat. You could buy them anywhere.

A number of Japs on the Pacific coast seem to have suffered the same rash as the Nazi seamen. These machines were first discovered in their homes.

But the problem would be difficult to meet, even if there were not so many of these machines in private hands. The Maritime commission here operates our ships, but the private companies and the hiring halls employ the seamen. The government therefore has no control over who is to be employed.

Before a sailor will sign for a voyage, naturally he must know when and where the ship is going and a good idea of the nature of its cargo. With such information freely given on the water front, it is not much of a job for a prepared Nazi agent to pick it up. With his special sending device, it has not been much of a trick to get his information out of the country.

May Not Last Long

Certainly Berlin has been inferentially gloating over its communications system from this country. Our short wave listeners have noticed that domestic news developments, not sent out of this country by any of the normal commercial communications avenues, have come back within two or three hours from the Berlin radio on occasions.

That this system will not last long can be expected from the knowledge of its workings already obtained (not half of which is set forth here). But some closer government supervision of hiring seamen, probably through the Maritime commission, if not naval intelligence or the FBI, is apparently in order as the next step.

Meanwhile, it is evident those posters around the waterfront "Don't talk, it may cost lives" are not stressing the case too strongly, or even enough. Too much talking in those spots could mean defeat for our Allies.

A Losing Battle Now

Some published accounts claim our sinkings are two ships a day, counting foreign and coastwise. The official figure has approximated that recently.

From the start of the war to March 30 we had lost sixty-six ships, sunk or damaged, an average of much less than one a day, although the rate has doubled the last few weeks, since the Nazi submarine campaign blossomed out fully.

This is more than we are putting into service daily as replacements. The launching figures now are running nearly two a day, but this does not mean we are yet getting that many into commission every twenty-four hours. By the end of the year, we will be.

As matters stand now, we are losing in the battle of commerce on the high seas, but the situation should be reversed within a year, even if the accelerated rate of Nazi sinkings continues.

Whether we have been forced to convoy is yet a military secret.

Sunk by Mine

Not all the ships that have gone down have been torpedoed. One large tanker ran into one of our own mines, thereby creating quite a stir in official navigation circles.

To escape a gale off Hatteras, the tanker decided suddenly to seek port. Without a special pilot it strayed into the mine fields and the front half of the ship was blown off.

Official accounts have listed the damage as due either to a torpedo or a mine, but subsequent comment of the crew left no doubt as to which it was.

No other ships will enter ports without harbor pilots unless the emergency be great.

Many Factors Enter into Treatment To Get Relief from Painful Feet

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D.
People who have had bad feet usually get a sour view of the world and I can't say I much blame them. When your feet hurt, they hurt so much of the time that you can't even walk around to relieve them.

At any rate when the patients arrive at the doctor's office, they are usually distinguished by having an A-1 grouch. They have been led along various paths of dubious treatments with all sorts of hopes held out for them and no relief in the end.

They have been misled by all sorts of advertising aids and semi-specialists and usually bring a bag of va-account the general as well as the local condition. The patient doesn't always necessarily and inevitably need arches. Perhaps his condition is due to a life-long habit of walking badly. So the first step in the examination of such a patient is to get him to walk around and see how he does it.

Badly Distributed Weight

His foot may be strained because something is the matter with his lower back, hip knee or ankle joint, or because he has continued over a period of years to distribute his weight badly. Perhaps there is a history of strain on some part of his foot that makes him unable to bear that weight on it. The color of his skin is important, as well as signs of inflammation such as bursitis, planter warts, calluses or bunions.

After this the feet are studied in relation to the weight-bearing function, and an x-ray is indispensable in disclosing painful bone conditions that are otherwise not clearly evident on physical examination. Not only shoes, but socks are checked for adequate size.

In the long run, however, the essential thing about most foot conditions is the use of proper shoes. Again this means an individual adjustment of the shoe to the requirements of the patient. A shoe that may be all right for one person is by no means necessarily all right for twenty other people. The shoe must be adapted to function and to the anatomy of the foot. For the normal child, the shoes should have a well-rounded toe the leather sole should be of adequate thickness and the shank sturdy but flexible. In children who are overweight, with weak or pronated ankles, the shank

Questions and Answers

E. M. R.—Can there be some substitution in the diet of a pregnant woman to supply calcium if the consumption of milk causes an irrit-tated condition of the gall bladder and the stomach resulting in a hacking cough and bad sweating of the chest during the night? If this condition seems apparent before pregnancy, could adjustments be made during the period, thus supplying the prospective mother with enough calcium?

Answer: Vegetables, eggs, fruits and meat all contain calcium and it is possible to take calcium in pure form, such as calcium carbonate. In my experience however, inability to drink milk is more imaginary than real and can be overcome by persuasion.

A pageant entitled "Easter's Festival" will be presented at 7:45 o'clock Sunday evening by the Sunday school of Calvary Evangelical church. The scene is laid in the Garden of Spring and the pageant deals with a festival being given in honor of Easter. Robin Red Breast and Bluebird call the flowers and birds to the festival, where they sing their praise to God. The Marigold tells a lovely legend. Easter repeats the story of the first Easter and Jack-in-the-Pulpit brings the sermon.

The musical program includes "Earth Is Waiting for the Easter," "Welcome the Springtime Morning," "All Things Bright and Beautiful," "On Easter Day," "Telling the Story of Easter," and "Oh, Praise the Lord for Easter Day" to be sung by the pageant choir and a solo. "Easter Has a Message True".

Nancy Menze and JoAnn Menze will take the parts of the two heralds; Manola Balsley will portray Easter; James Allan Shaffer, Robin Redbreast; Nancy Scarlett, Bluebird; Mason Suk, Jr., Glendon Shriver, Emory Shriver and Paul Stickle, other birds; Marie Hobel, Marigold; Virginia Shaffer, Jack-in-the-pulpit; Elizabeth Purinton, Jean Turner, Shirley Taylor, Juanita Stickle and Donna Lou Suk, the group of flowers; Janet Suk, Anita Turner, Elean Erichsen and Jean Shaffer, sunbeams; Helen Erichsen, Chester Erichsen and William Kunis, Jerusalem children; Aden Abe, Joseph of Arimathea; William Taylor, Nicodemus; Ann Menze, an angel; Mrs. Thekla Shaffer, Mrs. Hazel Manges and Mabel England, a group of women.

FIFTY MEMBERS IS GOAL SET BY PLATT FOR ORCHESTRA

Jack Platt, director of the Cumberland Alumni Orchestra, last evening set the membership goal for the orchestra at fifty, which he states will make a well balanced organization. The original goal was forty members, but with three new members last evening the membership has already reached forty-six. At the last evening's additions included another string base, a drummer and a trombonist.

There is a definite need for string instruments, one E. flat alto saxophone and a flute. Mr. Platt said last evening. Among the new additions to the orchestra is a harp, a bassoon and a string base, and this is the first time they have been included in the orchestra.

The Cumberland Choral society will present with the Alumni Orchestra in this concert two selections for orchestra and chorus. One will be "A Mighty Fortress Is Our God" and the other, "Festival Prelude" from the opera "De Meistersingers" by Wagner.

Featured on the program will be George Gershwin's "Rhapsody in Blue" which in reality is a concerto for piano and orchestra. One number Mr. Platt feels will probably be popular with the audience because most is very familiar, in selections from "The Student Prince". He will announce the date for the concert in the near future.

Club Will Meet

Eugene Gunning will be the guest speaker at the weekly dinner-meeting of the dormitory club to be held at 6:15 o'clock this evening at Central Y.M.C.A. Mr. Gunning will speak on sports.

William Bender, president of the club, will introduce the speaker.

First Aid Class Begins Next Week

A new class in standard Red Cross first aid instruction will begin next Thursday night at 7:30 o'clock at Hader's funeral home. The classes will be for both men and women and Leroy Silcox will be the instructor. Persons may contact either Silcox or the Red Cross to enroll.

Homemakers Will Conduct Flower Meeting April 9

Annual Affair Will Be Held at the Home of Mrs. Lawson Wagner

The annual flower meeting of the Valley Road Homemakers club will be held at 10:30 o'clock April 9, at the home of Mrs. Lawson Wagner, 1116 Bedford road. Plans were made at the meeting of the club yesterday afternoon at Emmanuel Episcopal parish house. The group also discussed the covered dish dinner to be held for members and their friends at 12 o'clock May 6 in the parish house, with Mrs. E. O. Pritch chairman in charge of the recreational program.

The Homemakers club will have a one day meeting at College Park this summer instead of the annual Rural Women's Short Course, because of the summer sessions. Miss Maude A. Bean, county home demonstration agent, announced. She also told the group that the County Council Homemakers Clubs and the Rural Short Course Executive Board will meet with Miss Venia Keller, College Park, here sometime this month.

Speaking on gardens and vegetables, Miss Bean stressed that vegetables should not be cooked too much and the lid should be kept off the kettle to keep the green vegetables greener. She also pointed out the value of baking the vegetables in their skins to preserve the most vitamins.

Mrs. Charles Callis, literature chairman, spoke on "Defense and Education". Mrs. Nicholas Jordano and Mrs. George Kraft reviewed "Keys of the Kingdom" and advised members to read it.

A quiz on rhymes was conducted by Mrs. E. O. Pritch during the recreational period and prizes were won by Mrs. W. C. McMurdo, Mrs. J. J. Tipton, Mrs. George Kraft and Mrs. Hildah Funkhauser.

The hostesses were Mrs. C. R. Koegel and Mrs. Leslie W. Nave. The meeting closed with the group singing, "America" under the direction of Mrs. Kraft, with Mrs. Frank Perdue at the piano.

CHAPTER THIRTY-FOUR
NOTHING Lois Lyndon could have done would have made Larry detest her more thoroughly. Positively sinking, Annette pulled her momentary escort from his chair and led him to the dance stage and into a hilarious conga chain. Above everything, she did not wish Larry to know she had witnessed that moment of utter debasement.

When they arrived home, about 3 o'clock, and Larry reached for a mirror and began a penetrating scrutiny of his temples, she knew he did not suspect she had seen or heard anything. And, for once, she was thankful that the liquor had dimmed his perception.

She even asked with careless laughter, "What on earth are you looking for, darling?"

"Gray hairs," he said immediately, still turning and twisting his head.

The girl slipped out of her long silver cloth coat, then walked over and took the hand mirror away from him. "How ridiculous!" she scolded mildly. "You haven't had one forages."

"But I have, Annette. I've been pulling them out. They seem to get there faster than I can yank them out." His worried gaze sought hers. "Tell me how I seem to you, Annette. You're only 19. Do I seem old to you?"

"It's not your long white beard that I mind. It's the way your joints creak when you lower yourself to your wheel chair." Flippancy changed into impatient sharpness. "Larry, to me you are the most wonderful and perfect person in the world. You're just right. In your work, you're right for August's 40, or whatever he is, just as you're right in real life for me. I don't think of you as anything except perfect. That day in your theater dressing room in Chicago, when you kissed me, I swore never to admit how much I loved you, to keep it from you as a sort of self-preservation or inner pride or something. I don't know exactly what. She shook her head. "But now, I don't want to keep quiet. It would be useless anyway, because you know how much I love you. You know that I'm sick with it and that I'll never be any other way." She put her hands on his black-clad shoulders, yet kept her distance.

"Annette, the doorman."

Larry gazed at her, so beautiful in her bouffant gown of white and silver embroidery, her jewels shimmering like myriad lights. Then he snatched her into his arms. "Oh, my darling, I'm such a fool—such a fool!"

He repeated the same remark to August Drake the morning after. They were having an 11 o'clock meal in a small, glass-walled breakfast room. The actress did not argue with him.

"I don't know why I get myself involved in silly situations." He glowered into an empty cereal dish. "Like this Lois Lyndon episode." His eyes sought August's. "You know, the crazy kid has marrying ideas. Imagine! But it's all over now, thank heaven!"

The actress poured herself a cup of black coffee. "I never could figure out why you passed Lois up cold when you were single. Why did you have to wait until you were married to discover her charms?"

"So long as she was kissing me," he confessed, "I was bored with her. Then, to jolt Annette into coming with me, I kissed Lois. That's when it started to be different. After all, August, it had been over a year since I'd kissed anyone except Annette."

"What a record!" August commented dryly.

"Well, it was! You know how many girls I usually averaged a season."

"Spare me!" the actress forbade, with an upraised hand. Anyway, marriage is supposed to make a difference in one's romances."

Larry waited until the Filipino waiter had served bacon and poached eggs and retired to the serving pantry. "These silly little affairs have nothing to do with my marriage," he insisted.

"That's the remark men have been making since the first one made a fool of himself. Silly affairs mean something to Annette."

A quick unhappiness swept across Laurence Peyton's face. "If she would just be the spunky little dickens she used to be, instead of such a meek angel, I'd feel better. I find myself wishing she'd hit me with a brick."

"Why shouldn't she be meek? You've taken her work away from her and you do pretty well at taking yourself from her."

Larry scoffed, "Annette doesn't care about her work."

"You are lying and you know it," his partner pronounced. "If ever I saw a girl intended for the theater, she is it."

"All the same she isn't going to be. The only appearances I want her making are those as Laurence Peyton's wife."

"Why, you detestably conceited, selfish pig!" grunted August. She hardly could remember when any personal matter had irritated her sufficiently to cause tears other than those commonly called crocodile. But tears of sincerity were in her eyes now.

"Take it easy!" Larry said softly, but harshly. "You know I've tried to get her a break. But I'll be damned if I'll let her start out as one of the starlets on a penny bank salary."

"She would be willing."

Peyton said in determined repetition. "Well, I'm not! So since they won't offer her what she is worthy of, she is better off just as my wife."

August Drake's glass-heeled bodice slipped came down on the floor bell. "Bring me some brown sugar and heavy cream," she directed the Filipino boy. Later, burying the unsweetened steved apples of her diet beneath that double richness, she accused Larry. "It's your fault. You make me so mad I have to do something violent and this is the most violent thing I can do."

In a tone of detachment the man said, "You shouldn't touch it. You know what it will do to your hips."

"Yes, and I know what the woofe water is doing to you." The fiery-haired actress turned angry eyes toward her partner. "Either that or the robe you're wearing is darned unbecoming. And I'm sure," she continued viciously, "it is not the robe."

Larry flushed. "Well, what is a guy going to do in a town where champagne flows like Goose Creek in March?"

"Why don't you try shaking your head crosswise for a change instead of up and down?"

Rebelligiously Larry said, "I like to drink."

"But you've got to have some sense about it. I like to eat, too," she fared. "I'd like to sit down right now to a New England meal of baked beans, country sausage, corn pudding, creamed oysters, curry jelly, apple Betty—when I marry Ted," she asserted, "I'm going to eat everything and as often as I wish."

Laurence Peyton put down his fork and leaned back in his chair. "Do you mean to say you are going to get married again?" When she nodded, without losing a chance at a bite of cream and sugar soaked apples, he said, "I should think you'd realize what marriage will do to your picture career."

"In this town where couples you don't even know are married get divorces," August hooted. "Don't be idiotic! Besides, when I made that remonstrance concerning your marriage you told me it was an old chestnut."

"You kept on finding fault just the same," Larry reminded.

"Yes, and I still don't think much of your marriage," she declared meaningfully.

"Don't bother yourself with it." "Oh, I won't." She gave a high-shouldered shrug. "I'll just think about my own. I'm going to get wrinkles and chins and hips and stomachs."

The man cut in churlishly. "Then you won't work with me."

"I'll bet you're right."

During that lull, Annette walked into the breakfast room, lovely in a brightly-striped gypsy dress, and a completely rested after the first good sleep in many weeks. "How lovely to find you two smoking a peace pipe." She had the morning theatrical pages under her arm. "I thought you'd be fighting over the scissors to cut out these marvelous reviews."

The indoor shots for the second Drake-Peyton vehicle, "The Kashmir Song," were made first, after an idyllic, but very short rest for the starring pair. Shooting lasted through June, at which time they went on location outside Yuma for the outdoor scenes.

Loudly vociferous, Larry objected to Ralph Hay. "Snow scenes in the winter. Desert scenes in the summer. What a business!"

He was his usual unsympathetic self. "Some people," he observed wearily, "just sweat. Others get paid $3,500 a week for it."

It was while Larry was in Yuma that Annette saw Lois Lyndon in the Beverly Hills shop of Drachman-Fifth Avenue. Lois pretended not to see Annette. For that reason it pleased her to step beside the blonde girl and force her unwilling recognition.

PUTTING ON A SHOW

YOUR JOB as declarer is usually to play the hand in the safest, surest, sanest, simplest way that will attain your objective. But if you had been playing all evening with opponents who considered you a wizard and had not found a single opportunity to impress them with something intricate, wouldn't you go out of your way a bit to make an unusually fancy play if you saw a chance to do it? You certainly would. And you also would hope that they would not realize you could have obtained the same result by a much simpler method.

West led his heart K and followed with the Q. A bit of study showed South that his sound way to make the contract was to ruff that trick with the club 10, cash two top clubs and then lead his three top diamonds until one of them was ruffed—a plan which would work if the defenders' combined strength was not too great.

Distributed by King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Since 1776, the forests of the United States have produced twenty-two hundred billion board feet of lumber, or enough to build 30,000,000 homes, 12,000,000 farm buildings, 2,000,000 schools and libraries, 600,000 churches and 400,000 factories.

trump J was singly guarded. After that he could use the club 8 to the 9 as an entry to the dummy to use the diamonds for two spade discards, giving up a spade at the end.

This declarer, however, saw a way to be fancy. Instead of ruffing the second heart, he discarded the diamond A on it. Next he won the spade switch with the A, took two high clubs, followed by the diamond K and Q, then led the club 8 to the 9. The diamonds then furnished three spade discards. When this worked, his opponents thought he was wonderful. But where would he have been if the club J had been held by the defender who had three trumps? However, even then the sounder plan could have been thwarted if that defender failed to ruff the third high diamond.

Mexico Takes the Long-Range War View

MEXICO CITY (AP)—Even the foresters are being called on to do their part in the Mexican preparedness program. Senator Leon Garcia said military experts should be asked to choose areas to be planted to trees so they would provide shelter for troops. He also proposed that wide-spreading trees be planted along the roads so troops could be moved without being seen from the air.

A GOOD NEIGHBOR POLICY

and party-line service

NOW that we can no longer get all the copper we need for telephone lines, more and more families will find it necessary to accept party-line telephone service. In doing so they will help to conserve a vital war material.

Party-line service is good service when users on the same line are considerate of each other—when they answer their calls promptly—hold the line no longer than is reasonable and always replace the receiver when they have finished.

A good neighbor policy "along party lines" will give better telephone service to more people.

TODAY'S VICTORY GARDEN-GRAPH

By DEAN HALLIDAY
(Distributed by Central Press Association)

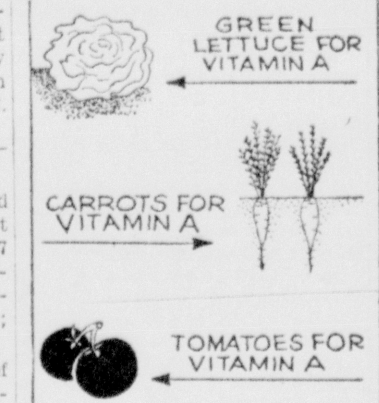

VITAMINS IN VICTORY VEGETABLES

It is hoped that through Victory Vegetable Gardens better food habits will result, through the planting and use of high vitamin and mineral-bearing vegetables.

Among the leafy vegetables suggested are lettuce, cabbage, kale, turnip greens, chard, collards and spinach.

Root crops which should be grown in extra quantities, as they may be stored easily, are turnips, parsnips, beets, carrots and rutabaga.

Miscellaneous vegetables suggested are tomatoes and pole beans.

lima beans, peas, onions, radishes, cucumbers, bush and Hubbard squash, and broccoli.
As illustrated in the Garden-

Graph, lettuce is one of the most popular of leafy vegetables and is high in Vitamin A.

Carrots, high in Vitamin A, should head the list of root crops for they can be eaten raw without any loss of vitamins incurred in cooking.

Tomatoes, high in Vitamin C, are one of the indispensable vegetables. A long season can be had by planting early, medium and late varieties.

It is expected that more than a million workers will be employed in the automotive industry's plants before the end of this year.

Gas on Stomach

What many Doctors do for when excess stomach acid causes gas, sour or heartburn, indigestion, etc. is to prescribe medicine known as antacids. These medicines, known as Bell's and Tablets, try to neutralize the acid, and bring comfort very quickly—yet at a cost! Only Bell's at drug stores. If you try Bell's, you'll know it's the only one that doesn't prove Bell's better, because it does get double your money back.

YOUR BUSINESS IS A WAR BUSINESS

Whatever your business—whether you make buttons or bayonets, sell hosiery or hand grenades—you are directly or indirectly a part of our country's war effort. Today every business is a war business.

You are a user of one of the most vitally important of all the things going into war production—electricity. It must be used efficiently and without waste.

It is equally important that electrical equipment be maintained at full efficiency, because anything less detracts from the war effort. Furthermore, such materials will be more and more difficult to obtain.

A FREE INDUSTRIAL WAR SERVICE

Our power sales engineers were engineers before they were salesmen. There are some wastes of power in nearly all industrial operations. We can help you to eliminate those wastes. If you are being called on for increased production, our experience is at your service in finding how the bigger job can be done with the most economical use of machinery and power.

Because longer hours and harder work are ahead for everybody, you will need the best possible lighting. Often this can be obtained without buying new equipment or increasing the use of electricity—by re-arranging light sources, remodeling fixtures, repainting ceilings and walls, or simply by cleaning. Our Lighting Representatives can provide valuable information along these lines.

A FREE COMMERCIAL WAR SERVICE

Commercial users of electricity also have their lighting, as well as cooking and air conditioning, problems in stores, restaurants, hotels, offices, etc. Our Representatives are just as available and can be just as valuable to you as to the Industrialist.

In every commercial use of electricity, from grilling hamburgers to air conditioning entire buildings, our experience and knowledge are available to help you do it more efficiently and economically.

Winning this war is a tremendous job. One way in which we can contribute is by helping you to make the most of what you have. We want you to call on us for service without hesitation or obligation.

This is the fourth in a series of four advertisements outlining the home, farm, industrial and commercial war services that we offer you.

THE DAILY STORY

A Wise Guy Who Knows All the Answers, Kicks a Girl—
Two Girls—for the Last Time

BY MARY WITHNER
Don Adams covertly watched Irma sniff out her cigarette in the dashboard ashtray and wondered if she knew anything about his running around with Virginia. Irma, he reflected as he drove the car toward the small grove where they had spent many hours together, had acted queerly all evening. "What's eating you?" he finally asked as the car rolled to a stop. Her dark eyelashes raised quickly. "Eating me?" she repeated.

"Maybe you'll find someone dumb enough."

"Listen, you phoney. For two months now you've been peddling me the bligst line, but I've checked up on you. You and me are through! Hear that? Through! Turn this borrowed jalopy back toward my home."

Don caught the emphasis on "borrowed jalopy" and knew that she knew the car wasn't his she had also gone to the trouble of checking the rest of his lies. "Hear me?" she prodded. Without uttering a word, he swung the car around and headed back toward the city. He tried once or twice to pick up the broken threads of their last conversation, but she remained aloof, cool and slightly disdainful. He had run around with both Irma and Virginia, the girl with whom he'd been keeping company for a year. For two months now he'd fooled V, telling her that he had to work on the nights he stepped out with Irma. The little gold digger, Irma, knew that he was nothing but a hardware clerk at 22 per and now she was scuttling him!

Good riddance! He almost shouted the words, but they never passed his lips. It was when they were in the city and he was slowing up before her home that she remarked: "Better luck with your big-shot gab with someone else. Maybe you'll find someone dumb enough to swallow it."

A half hour later, and without quite knowing why he was heading that way, he found himself driving in the direction of Virginia's home.

"Good kid, V," he muttered. Virginia with her straw-colored hair and violet eyes and heart-shaped face and a complexion that reminded one of peaches and cream V knew that he was only a clerk in a hardware store, but that did not make any difference with her. He had to admit to himself, now that Irma had given him the air, that V had qualities that placed her on a pedestal way above Irma.

He was smiling when he pulled up before the two-story frame building in which Virginia lived with her folks. He hopped out of the car and took the front steps two at a time. In answer to his ring, Virginia opened the door. "Why, Don!" she exclaimed. "Surprised?" he grinned. "What's happened?" she asked. "Didn't have to work tonight."

He leaned over with a confidential air. "I got a tip the firm is going to cut out the extra night hours. That means I'll be seeing you every night from now on."

"That's swell, Don." He chuckled her under the chin. "Come on," he urged. "Get on your coat and we'll go for a spin in Jack's car."

Calling back "I'll be back in a minute," she darted into the house. She returned shortly with her coat and hat on.

She was seating herself beside him when she suddenly sniffed and remarked, "A woman's been in this car. Whoever she is, she certainly uses a heavy exotic perfume."

He laughed nervously. "Your imagination, V. I've been driving this car nearly all day and I know no woman's been in it." He pulled out his pack of cigarettes and extended it to Virginia.

"Smoke?" She took one and lit it. They drove along, his tongue glib and smooth as they headed for the lake drive. He chuckled inwardly. Fooling V was that easy!

They had covered about a mile when she suddenly commanded: "Stop!"

"What's wrong?" he demanded.

bringing the car to a stop. "It was crushing out my cigarette in the ashtray and I found this." She reached back with one hand and pressed the switch that lit up the dome light. In her other hand she held a cigarette.

Don's throat felt suddenly dry. In Virginia's hand was Irma's crushed out cigarette. His first impulse was to tell her the truth, but he had heard, somewhere, that telling a woman the absolute truth was never appreciated.

"Probably Jack's wife," she smokes," he offered. "If not her, then some friend of Jack's wife."

"You've had the car all day, haven't you?" she put to him. "Yeah."

She ran her index finger over the cigarette stub. "Look! she ordered, extending her finger. "Puzzled, he looked at her finger. "I don't see anything at all," she said.

"Rough!" she revealed. "Still damp, and the tip of the cigarette is still moist from her lips!"

Her accusing eyes bored into his and there was a hurt, disillusioned look upon her face. "Seeing me every other night... I see it all now... I don't play that way, Don. You can have your heavily

ELDERLY BLUEFIELD LADY NOW
REGULAR WORLD'S TONIC USER

Says "Everything You Claim For This Great Medicine Is True — But You Are Far Too Modest About It"

Mrs. Emma Yost, 219 Fairfax St., Bluefield, W. Va., a respected Methodist Church member, says:

"Because of constipation, and the various ailments that followed in its wake, I have been quite run down physically of late. I had a lot of rheumatic-like kidney pains in my arms and limbs. At times these aches would be frightfully bad in the lower part of my back. I had many fierce headaches also which came, I suppose, because of the indigestion. I was distressed an awful lot with gas and bloating. My appetite was down to practically nothing. Often, even the sight of food would upset me. At night I got very little sleep and of course, mornings would always find me tired, dragged out and completely 'all in.' It wasn't long before I began feeling as nervous as a cat."

"However, since taking World's Tonic the whole picture has changed. My constipation was given a startling relief. It seemed no time at all before all the ailments resulting from constipation were beginning to leave. Soon I was enjoying a real good appetite. It seems that now I can eat anything I wish and as much of it as I care to. Before taking World's Tonic I had an awful lot of difficulty in getting a full night's sleep, and I'd awaken feeling sore and stiff as a board. But it looks like World's Tonic has taken care of this situation, too, for now I awaken feeling fresh as a daisy, with a feeling of pep and energy. I don't see how any one medicine could do so much good and relieve so many different ailments. The terrible headaches I used to suffer from are apparently done away with. Even those fierce rheumatic-like kidney pains in my back and shoulders seem done away with. My nervousness has been relieved and all the credit for all this good work must certainly go to this splendid medicine, World's Tonic."

World's Tonic contains roots and herbs from old world lands and is not a nasty tasting. (P-23) perfumed girl friend. We're through!"

He opened his lips to reply, but she was already getting out of the car. He knew, as she slammed the door, that he would always remember her parting remark:

"I'd rather crawl back home on my hands and knees than ride back home with a low-down, lying two-timer!"

"Male Animal" Pilot Writes, Acts, Directs

The usual movie director sits in on a rehearsal quietly. He's the boss of course, and whatever he says goes. He may modify an inflection, change a bit of business, rehearse the movement of the camera for the scene to come. That's the usual movie director.

But Elliott Nugent, the gentleman who piloted "The Male Animal," which starts tomorrow at the Liberty theater, is not the usual director. In rehearsal Mr. Nugent is far from quiet. He loves to act and, as a matter of fact, he did star in the play, "The Male Animal," for the length of its very successful run on Broadway last year.

Olivia de Havilland, Henry Fonda, Joan Leslie and Jack Carson, the stars of the film, dubbed Mr. Nugent "Hollywood's actingest director."

Incidentally, Mr. Nugent's forte isn't only being an "acting director." He was co-author of the stage version of "The Male Animal," and his partner in dazzling dialogue was James Thurber.

Marine Corps Drama Coming to the Strand

As timely and as thrilling a subject for a movie as you'll ever want to see is the pilot basis for Twentieth Century-Fox's technicolor production "To the Shores of Tripoli," which is scheduled to open on Saturday at the Strand theater.

Taking a raw recruit in the person of John Payne, the film puts him through all of the paces which the United States Marine undergoes to emerge a fighting "leatherneck." For romantic interest, none other than beautiful Maureen O'Hara in the role of a Marine nurse was selected to provide the love interest with handsome Payne. And Randolph Scott is said to turn in one of the top performances of his career as the hard-boiled sergeant.

gent who makes life both interesting and miserable for Payne.

The cast was selected with care and boasts the talents of such outstanding players as Nancy Kelly, William Tracy, Maxie Rosenbloom (for laughs), Henry Morgan, Edmund MacDonald, Russell Hicks, and Minor Watson.

The film was produced with the full cooperation of the United States Government and the Marine Corps went all out to give authenticity to the picture. Most of the scenes were filmed at the San Diego Marine Base, and hundreds of enlisted men took part in the production.

Andy Hardy Finds A New Romance

Andy Hardy finds a new romance and successfully gets out of it to become a "free man" again in "The Courtship of Andy Hardy," latest and merriest picture in the popular family series, which opens today at the Maryland theater.

Not only does Andy meet a new girl but he also rescues his sister from a dramatic "escape," sets into trouble with the police, and barely escapes the clutches of Polly Benedict, who returns to further complicate his young life.

Mickey Rooney proved again why he is America's number one box office attraction to the large opening night audience. In his favorite characterization, he proved a continuous source of entertainment.

In addition to the return of the Hardys, the picture was marked by one important event, the introduction in the series of Donna Reed. Playing her fourth role, she was acclaimed by those who saw her last night as a personality certain to climb to stellar heights in Hollywood. She played the new romantic interest in Andy's life to perfection.

The story centers around Andy's efforts to show Miss Reed, as Melodie Nesbit, a good time, on request of his father. Judge Hardy has taken pity on the girl, after trying the case of her bitter separated parents in his court.

Roy Rogers Western Showing at Embassy

Roy Rogers returns to the Embassy theater screen for three days beginning today in "South of Santa Fe," a spectacular new Republic musical western boasting the tops in cast and entertainment value. For in addition to George "Gabby" Hayes, ranking comedian in all the Rogers pictures, the film presents such well known performers as Linda Hayes, Paul Fix, Arthur Loft, Sam Flint, and the popular songsters of the airwaves, the Sons of the Pioneers.

Oklahoma Town Has Family Home Night Each Week

Parents and Children Spend the Evening Together as a Family

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph. D.
In Clinton, Oklahoma, the church bells ring at nine o'clock each Tuesday evening. This is Family Home Night for most parents and children of that city, who have chosen to spend the evening together as a family.
Mrs. Myers and I learned about this from Dr. Alice Sowers, as we stopped to call on her not long ago at Oklahoma university. She is professor of Family Life Education at that university and is known admiringly by hundreds of PTA leaders throughout the United States. Half her salary is paid by the Oklahoma Congress of Parents and Teachers which, under the leadership of Maude Calvert, national PTA chairman of family life and one of Oklahoma's Hall of Fame women, trains youth from 18 to 25 and has caused this department to be established in that university. Clinton's Family Home Night came out of a Family Life Institute which Dr. Sowers conducted in Clinton. Representatives of forty organizations of the town came together for the first conference, out of which grew a central planning committee including high school youth from 18 to 25, as well as adults.

"The week began," said Professor Sowers, "with Family Few Day." Families sat together at church, and sermons emphasized religion and family life. High school students made go-to-church posters. In one church a committee of young people telephoned each member on Saturday. Women's clubs co-operated.

Meetings and Discussions
"One meeting was a daily forum at the senior high school in which the young people talked freely about their friendships and family life. Others consisted of a public forum in which adults and young people talked about ways in which the home can be made a real cornerstone of democracy; discussions at men's luncheon clubs about the responsibility of parents, especially of fathers; a talk at the junior high school about relationships with parents and with brothers and sisters; an evening meeting for negro families; and on the closing night, a community sing and summary of the week at the city park, preceded by family picnics."

Engaged Couples
Out of all this have developed many forums and discussion groups in churches, schools and civic clubs. In which youths participate, with emphasis on family life and relationships. A study course on "The Christian Home," and a forum for engaged couples at one church are direct outcomes of the week. The whole city of Clinton has become family conscious.

What a fine undertaking this is! If the community and the nation are to endure as the foundation of our democracy, we must find ways of promoting wholesome family life.

Solving Parent Problems
Q We consider the amount of home work for our boy in the ninth grade far too heavy. Other parents of our school have the same complaint. What should we parents do?
A Each parent should keep an accurate record of the actual time spent by her child on the home work. Then assemble and study the records. If you parents are all agreed the assignments are too heavy, ask the school principal to sit down with you, as a group to talk over the matter. All should exercise good manners during this conference.

MT. SAVAGE, April 1.—Joseph Caldara, son of Mrs. Minnie Caldara, has been promoted to the rank of Major in the United States Army Air Corps.

Major Caldara is stationed at Bolling Field, Washington, D. C. He attended high school in Mt. Savage and graduated from Buffalo high school, New York. He attended Maryland university and later finished training at Randolph Field, an aviation school.

During the time that the government had charge of flying the mail planes, Major Caldara, then a second lieutenant, piloted one of these planes. When he was called into active service about a year ago he was promoted to captain. Major Caldara has been stationed at Bolling Field ever since his return to active service.

Give to Ambulance Fund

The employees of the Union Mining company donated $222.50 to the Mt. Savage ambulance fund yesterday. This sum, plus the contribution from the Brick and Clay workers Local Union and individual contributions from the members makes a total of forty per cent of the entire fund, so far collected, given by the Union Mining company workers.

It has been announced that over eighteen per cent of the fund has been donated by out-of-town residents. The amount collected toward the ambulance at present is $666.45. Several organizations have sponsored socials for the fund but have not yet made returns to the committee.

Browns Have Hope but Prospects Doubtful

Much Depending On Third Sacker Harlond Clift

Team Likely To Bunk in Lower Division of League Again

By JUDSON BAILEY
DELAND, Fla., April 1. (P)—The St. Louis Browns were being picked for the first division of the American League by many observers at this time last year and they are as good now as they were then.

But instead of the first division the Browns landed in a tie for sixth place last season and they are likely to bunk in the same general vicinity this year.

The Browns are a good middle class ball club. They will play good ball and bad. They are capable of making trouble for some of the upper strata rivals just as they have in the last couple of years.

Clift Hits Better
A good year for Third Baseman Harlond Clift would build the Browns into something more fearsome and Manager Luke Sewell is hopeful. The veteran showed up at camp on time for the first time in half a dozen years and as a result has been hitting better than in past springs.

His average last year was a puny .255, although he batted in eighty-four runs, and he has not hit over .290 since 1937 when he was a .306 dreadnaught. Chet Laabs and McQuinn are a couple of others capable of coming up with big scores.

Pitchers Are Same
But the Browns as a whole sum up to the same club they were last year—no better nor no worse.

The same pitchers who carried last year's burden are holding forth again—Elden Auker, who won fourteen games; Bob Muncrief, a thirteen-game winner, and Bob Harris, who accounted for a dozen triumphs. This trio is looking better than a year ago and Manager Sewell is counting on Denny Galehouse, John Niggeling and some of the other veterans to help.

Georgia Schools To Have Elevens

Board of Regents Adopts Resolution Continuing Athletics

By ROMNEY WHEELER
ATLANTA, April 1. (P)—There'll be no wartime suspension of football at the University of Georgia or Georgia Tech unless "further emergency should develop"—or unless diminishing gate receipts indicate public disapproval.

The State Board of Regents adopted today an administration-sponsored resolution continuing athletics, thus ending controversy created last week when L. W. Robert, Jr., member of the board, urged suspension of football to avoid interference with the war effort.

At insistence of Gov. Eugene Talmadge, however, the board named a special committee headed by Robert "to look into the matter" and guard against lag in the academic speed-up, in which colleges are seeking to graduate students in two and one-half to three years.

Georgia's action followed closely the withdrawal of a similar proposal in Mississippi, where intercollegiate football would have been suspended at the University of Mississippi and Mississippi State college. Sponsors of the move in Mississippi said the matter would not be considered further unless public disapproval of athletics developed.

Georgia and Mississippi State last season were two of the standout football teams of the South.

Louis, Jacobs Give $65,980 to Army Fund

NEW YORK, April 1. (P)—Heavyweight Champion Joe Louis and Promoter Mike Jacobs today presented a check for $65,980.02 to the Army Emergency Relief Fund as the proceeds of Louis's successful title defense against Abe Simon at Madison Square Garden Friday.

Louis's individual contribution, his share of the receipts, was $36,146. The bout drew a crowd of 18,200 and a gross "gate" of $132,430.41.

Jacobs and Madison Square Garden, which shares equally with the promoter, contributed $25,131.65 to the total. Simon returned $3,012.17 of the challenger's end of the purse. Ring officials gave $425 and the preliminary fighters $140. Other contributions of $125 made up the total.

Keyser Baseballers To Receive Tryouts With Reds' Farm Club

KEYSER, W. Va., April 1.—Albert Mayolo and Arthur Scall, who starred on the Keyser Moose team of the Bi-State Baseball League last season, left last night for Columbia, S. C., for tryouts there with the Cincinnati Reds' farm club. The two boys, both catchers on the local outfit last season, ranked with the Bi-State's brightest stars. Scall, on several occasions, played in the outfield.

Yale Hesitant on Subject of Name Coach until War Fog Leaves Field

By IRA WOLPERT

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., April 1.—So far as he knows to date, Coach Frank Murray of the University of Virginia will not be teaching the Yales their football lessons this season. This is not so much a matter of money as of security, all three of the coaches who were up for talks at New Haven having insisted that only long term contracts could induce them to leave their present shelters. Security seems to be the main reason for Clark Shaughnessy's abrupt change from the high pressures of Pacific Coast ball to the soft-browsing pastures of Maryland.

Favors Year-to-Year Basis
The thing seems to be that Yale is not prepared to pay for a big-time man's term contract, but wants to go along on a year-to-year basis until the fog of war lifts from the college football field.

Yes, the fog of war is there all right. The common or non-college man has been taking over more and more of the game in recent years and has been coming to think of pro ball as a better game. Yale is not sure that the war will not end college football altogether as we have known it—Saturday afternoon full of rascals and coats and rah-rah and the whiskied-up nostalgia of graduates hungering for their youth—and make it what college baseball is.

"The day after Pearl Harbor, Monday," Murray said, "our prey here got all the boys together and told them to stay in school. That was their job, he told them, not to rush out now to fight, but to stay and train themselves to become leaders in the fight."

"Well, this is the South, you know, the pepper-headed South. I guess kids everywhere are too not to wait for their time to come. Anyway, Bob Fuller, who had two years of football left to play, is in the army now. Eddie Bryant, who had another year to go in the backfield, is flying for the navy and Billy Suhling, who was to captain our team this year, is with him."

"It's a funny thing about Billy. His father, W. Gerhard Suhling II, was headed for a great football career, too, when he was in college. But that was 1916 and he gave it up for the war, the way his son did."

When Murray said this, he was running his boys through spring practice, some forty of them, pink-cheeked and taffy-haired mostly.

Football is a bruising sport and most kids have to be persuaded to come out for it. Practice is bruising and playing is even more bruising and if a general atmosphere of adoration didn't surround it, if a kid couldn't get fame out of it, or a career or the attention of a prettiest girl or a scholarship or the respect of moneyed men with jobs to offer—if all this was gobbled up by the war and never returned, then what would college football be like?

Play Harder in Wartime
"You think the war is going to make the kids feel football is unimportant?" Murray said. His voice was gravelly, maybe with emotion, and he cleared it. Murray was teaching football in the last war at a Milwaukee high school and what football's life has been, his has been. He went up in the world with it, first at Marquette, and if it goes down, he'll go down with it.

"The war came closest to the kids here," Murray said, "when we heard Harry Gaver was dead. Harry had played lacrosse and had been a cheer leader here. He was on the Oklahoma in Pearl Harbor, Dec. 7. Never had a chance."

"All the kids here knew Harry. You know what the reaction was, the personal, selfish reaction that was in there with the sorrow and anger and all that? They played the harder. They went out for the sports more. And it was easy to see that they felt, we'll get this in while we can, we'll do it while there's time and it'll help us for what's ahead."

"Then, look there. You see who's out here now, with the ball, going for spring practice? Bill Dudley. He was All-American halfback last year for practically everybody. He can't play college football any more and maybe he'll be in the army before he's 21, but he asked me if he could come out and practice just the same. When you got kids who love football like that—"

"We are going to have a course for army officers in civil administration up here. It's to teach our boys from captains and colonels up to administer the territory our armies capture until a regular government can get in. Maybe the sight of all those uniforms on the campus going to classes will settle our boys and keep them in school, teach them that it's more patriotic, because more useful, to get your training than to run out to the 'fight raw.'—North American Newspaper Alliance.

AAU Group Will Demand Apology From Army Major

Committee Will Call on Commanding General of Third Corps Area

NEW ORLEANS, April 1. (P)—The National Amateur Athletic Union means to have an apology from the army for recent remarks of a major who said that the AAU suspension of a soldier-athlete "smacks of Axis effort by a fifth column."

Lawrence Di Benedetto, AAU president, said today he had appointed a committee to call on the commanding general of the Third Corps Area to insist on an apology for remarks attributed to Major Richard O'Connell, area morale chief, after the AAU barred Marty Passaglia, San Francisco seafarer, from playing with any AAU basketball team. The AAU ruling was made after Passaglia had competed against professionals.

Special Committee Named
"After carefully studying the report of the registration committee of the South Atlantic Association of the AAU, submitted to me by President Carl F. Gail of the Baltimore district, I am firmly convinced that the suspension of Marty Passaglia by the South Atlantic AAU was perfectly in order," Di Benedetto said in a statement today.

"I have this day appointed a special committee consisting of Daniel J. Ferris, national secretary, Carl P. Gail, president of the South Atlantic Association and Charles L. Ornstein, member of our national board of governors to go to Baltimore and talk the matter over with the commanding general of the Third Corps Area, thus putting a stop to unwarranted remarks such as attributed to Major O'Connell."

Says Apology "in Order"
"I personally believe that an apology is in order from Major O'Connell and I have instructed this committee to insist upon it."

Noting that Major A. K. Tunnell, special services officer at Aberdeen, Md., subsequently suggested a conference to discuss the matter, Di Benedetto today said "Major Tunnell said he wanted to talk the matter over with us, and that the AAU was a fine bunch of men. I am glad to know that he feels this way about us."

Major O'Connell last week said "this whole thing smells unto high heaven," and declared that if Passaglia was not allowed to play in the AAU tournament the army would not permit boxers to appear in an AAU championship tournament.

Allegany Gridders Guests at Albright

Two of Allegany high's star linemen of last fall, Bob Bowers and Herb Loyer, have returned from Reading, Pa., where they spent several days on the Albright college campus as guests of "Lone Star" Dietz, Albright football coach.

Fights Tuesday Night

(By The Associated Press)
Philadelphia—Mello Betting, 183, Beacon Hill, N. Y., outpointed Gus Dorazio, 190, Philadelphia, 130. Frankie Carlo, 125, Philadelphia, outpointed Wayman Stewart, 121, Washington, 170.
New York—Freddie Archer, 129½, Newark, outpointed Carlos Malacara, 139, Mexico City, 140.
White Plains, N. Y.—Jackie Altek, 169½, Brooklyn, outpointed George Rochan, 159½, Akron, O., 68.
New York—Harry (Buddy) O'Dell, 161½, Amsterdam, N. Y., outpointed Lou Schwartz, 166, Brooklyn, 68.
Los Angeles—Jackie Wilson, 140½, Los Angeles, knocked out Pedro Ortega, 141½, Tijuana, Mexico, 31.

Power vs. Speed

Hard punchers always have had their main trouble tangling up with speed or better boxing skill.

You may recall the fact that in their twenty rounds Jack Dempsey could win only something like two rounds against Gene Tunney. Jack had thirty-five rounds in which to draw a bead on Tunney and Tom Gibbons with only one knockdown. And Harry Greb was a green mamba against the big fellows, as long as he had two eyes.

Joe Louis had far more trouble with Billy Conn than he ever had against the mammoths and the mastodons. It took him twenty-one rounds, or thereabouts, to leave Bob Pastor flattened in the pleasant meadows of singing larks. The most explosive of all punches still must land on its target to be effective.

There is no intention here to suggest this far in advance that Conn has an even chance to win. But there are at least the possibilities of another big-time thriller, especially when it is private soldier against private soldier for the largest relief gate any single contest has yet offered.

Louis and Conn are sure to be sports' major party for 1942—first, as a spectacle; second, as the more important contribution to the general good of a much tougher and a much bigger game—the matter of needed relief.

Conn could stand an extra five or six pounds, without speed cost. Appearing for a minute or so in the ring just before last Friday's fight, Private Bill in his uniform looked to be thinner than half a toothpick.

Conn can stand additional weight better than Louis can. Joe looked physically perfect at 207, so far as hand speed and power go. His mistakes were due to an over eagerness that upset part of his timing. Just how much speed he will lose at 212 or 215 is a guess that belongs to the future.

The Fatal Punch
Conn still believes the best punch he landed in his first Louis fight was the blow that cost him the scrap.

HOW THEY LOOK IN THE MAJORS

JACK SORDS SIZES UP THE BIG LEAGUE TEAMS

By WALTER L. JOHNS (Central Press)

NEW YORK, April 1.—Don't be surprised if Connie Mack wins a pennant in the American League this year. By American we have no reference to the baseball loop formed in 1900 as an eight-club circuit. We mean the American league against Hitler and his dictator allies. Connie Mack has given enough good ball players to the United States armed forces to make up a whole team there.

Mack last nine men to the service. And included in this group were Sam Chapman, slugging outfielder; Benny McCoy, the $65,000 regular second baseman, and the infielders, Joe Gantebain and Al Brancato.

Annually, Mack comes up with a flock of rookies as he attempts to guide his team out of the depths where it has been for seven years. The same is true this year, for Mack brought up no less than eighteen bushers as he faced the problem of rebuilding the team after losing three regulars.

Infield Is Problem

Mack's biggest problem, according to camp information, is his infield. He's set at first with the hard-hitting Dick Siebert, who had a fine .334 average last year. Siebert is a holdout at the moment, but probably will be brought in line in time. While Siebert is absent from camp, the first base job has been handled by Ken Richardson, from Williamsport, and by Felix Mackiewicz, the former Purdue star who was a regular outfielder with Wilmington last year. Richardson is a second baseman.

At the keystone sack Mack has been using Larry (Crash) Davis, the talkative ex-Duke university athlete who got in thirty-nine games with the A's last year.

Kreevich Is Addition

Pete Suder is the shortstop, but has been playing at third base as he did last year. Buddy Blair, once with the Yanks but with Kansas City last year and Al Rubeling, who spent last season with Toronto, are competing for the other infield post, third base. Johnny Wallasea, six-foot three-inch shortstop with Washington last year, also is a strong candidate for short and has been playing that position in the training games.

In the outfield, Mack added Mike Kreevich to fill one of the garden spots. Kreevich has been with the Chicago White Sox for several years. Bob Johnson, the big gun of the Mack club and Wilson Miles, 312, bitter last year, are the other outfielders. There has been some talk of Johnson being traded to Chicago for infield help.

Other talent for the outfield includes Eddie Collins, son of the famous Eddie Collins Elmer Vale, hit .420 for the Macks in fifteen games last year, and Mackiewicz.

Catching staff is well fortified with Frank Hayes and Hal Wagner and a rookie from Georgetown U., Jim Castagna.

The Athletics' pitching staff is headed by Jack Knott and Phil Marchiondo, the big right-handers, and Les McCrabb and Herman Besse.

Russ Christopher, who won sixteen for Newark, and Dick Fowler, who won ten for Toronto, have been impressive in the camp games. Roger Wolff, who won sixteen for Williamsport also has shown some stuff. Jack Hallett, purchased from the White Sox may get a starting berth. He won five and lost five for the Pals once last season.

Keyser All-Star Five Wins Romney Tourney

ROMNEY, W. Va., April 1.—The Keyser All-Stars took over the title won last year by another Keyser team, the Pepsi-Colas, by defeating the Rice A. C. of Cumberland, Md., 39-35 in the finals of the sixth annual Potomac Valley Independent basketball tournament here last night.

The All-Stars went to the finals by defeating the Romney Globetrotters 49-32 while the Cumberland crew, after drawing a first-round bye, turned back the Petersburg Pepsi-Colas, 47-43, in the semifinals.

Jim Cox led Keyser by caging sixteen points while Charles "Chick" Shider and George Evans were the

Hyndman High's Baseball Team To Open Monday

Pennsylvanians Expect To Make Strong Bid in Conference Race

HYNDMAN, Pa., April 1.—Coach Roscoe Wareham and his Hyndman high school baseball team, who began practice last Friday, expect to be among the contenders for the 1942 Tri-State Interscholastic Conference championship.

Coach Wareham is building his club around a half-dozen holdovers, including two pitchers, from last year's combination. Twenty boys reported for the first workout.

The veterans are George Heller, catcher; Roy Evans and Robert Rizer, who will head the mound staff; Roy Humes, slated to again hold down the first base job; Glenn Evans, third sacker, and Outfielder Walter Harden.

Open Next Monday

Divorce Cases Are Heard Here

An order was signed in circuit court yesterday by Associate Judge William A. Huster in which Frances P. McElfish is directed to pay alimony of $10 weekly to Ruth G. McElfish for her and their infant child's support unless cause to the contrary is shown before April 20. McElfish also is ordered to pay the counsel fee for the suit.

In the bill of complaint filed for Mrs. McElfish by her attorney, Estel C. Kelley, it states that Mr. and Mrs. McElfish were married in Cumberland March 16, 1917, and lived together until October 1, 1941, when he allegedly deserted her. The bill of complaint, seeking alimony and counsel fee, states that McElfish is employed in Hagertown.

A partial divorce, counsel fee and support is asked by McClure Lutzman in her suit filed in equity court yesterday against her husband, Raymond B. Lutzman.

Mrs. Lutzman, through her attorney, Edward J. Ryan, charges cruelty. She states that she and her husband were married at Martinsburg, W. Va., October 31, 1934, and had been residing together at 303 Virginia avenue, Cumberland, until recently.

Because her husband allegedly struck her, choked her and threatened her, Mrs. Lutzman said she moved to another residence, 127 Race street. She asks that Lutzman be restrained from molesting her or entering her present home. Mayme B. Street, through her attorney, Edward J. Ryan, has filed suit in equity court against John J. Street. Further details could not be learned as the papers were removed from the files.

Martin E. Wenrich has filed suit in equity court against Daisy E. Wenrich. Further details could not be learned as the papers were not in the files. Edward J. Ryan is attorney for the complainant.

Dr. R. H. Riley, director of the Maryland State Department of Health calls attention to an article on "spring tonics" from the nutritionist of the department. "Some of you will remember when it was fashionable to dose ourselves in the spring with sulphur and molasses," the nutritionist writes. "We did not realize that this let-down feeling in the spring was due to a deficiency of fresh fruits and vegetables in the winter diet."

"As a result of improved shipping and transportation facilities we are able to combat some of this feeling through including a wider variety of foods in the diet."

"The farmer has been encouraged to plan and plant a year-round garden so that fresh carrots, parsnips and greens are available. Wild greens, such as cress or dandelion greens furnish Vitamin A which helps to build resistance against infections and helps growth. A half-cup of these greens will provide more than enough of this Vitamin for our daily need."

"These greens, too, are an excellent source of iron which is necessary to help build good red blood. Turnip tops, beet tops, cauliflower greens, kale and carrot tops are good year-round-tonics. Let us try to have at least one serving a day throughout the year."

"Before cooking greens, the leaves should be washed thoroughly to remove sand or dust. Cook in the water left clinging to the leaves after washing. Ten to twelve minutes is sufficient. Vinegar, salt and pepper are the usual accessories. "Fresh rhubarb, a good spring tonic, is in season and can be sweetened with one and a half cups of syrup to one pound of rhubarb, or if honey is used, allow three quarters of a cup for one pound of rhubarb, which makes delicious tarts or pies."

"When sugar substitutes are used the rhubarb should be stewed longer than usual to permit evaporation of part of the liquid."

"In order to provide 'all-the-year-round-tonics' in your garden consult your county extension service for bulletins which will help you plant wisely and well."

Isolationists Are Charged with Libel

Jones, Noble Accused of Casting Reflections on Gen. MacArthur

SACRAMENTO, Calif., April 1 (AP)—Prosecution of Robert Noble and Ellis O. Jones, founders of two isolationist organizations on charges of libeling General Douglas MacArthur has been ordered by Attorney General Earl Warren.

Warren instructed his assistant, Warren Olney, in Los Angeles to swear out a complaint charging Nobles, Jones, and their associates with conspiracy to commit criminal libel in a bulletin which he said was issued by them yesterday under the heading, "copperhead notes."

The statement, Warren charged, cast reflection upon General MacArthur's departure from the Philippines and could by no stretch of imagination be considered an exercise of the right of free speech. "It is libel of the basest sort," he added, "and when taken in connection with their other acts may constitute treason."

Both Noble and Jones were arrested recently by federal authorities on charges of violating the Espionage Act but U. S. Attorney General Biddle ordered the charges dismissed. Jones is under a ninety-day city jail sentence in Los Angeles for refusing to testify before a California Assembly Committee on un-American activities.

Noble turned to the international scene, as represented by his "friends of progress" organization, after several years of activity in Southern California as an old age pension plan promoter. Jones founded the National Copperheads to advocate American isolationism.

Canadian Seaman Tells of Rescue From Caribbean

Three of Crew of Nineteen Are Saved by United States Patrol Bomber

NEW YORK, April 1 (AP)—A Canadian seaman detailed here the story of the rescue of himself and three companions from the rough, shark-infested waters of the Caribbean sea by a United States Navy Patrol Bomber on the morning of Feb. 23, many hours after their small freighter had gone to the bottom.

The sailor, Peter Soroko, 22, of Winnipeg, Manitoba, said he didn't know whether his vessel was torpedoed or struck a mine. There were nineteen men in the crew, he said, and he did not know the fate of the other fifteen.

At about 9 p. m., Feb. 22, said Soroko, he was standing watch and was about to enter a hatchway when "there was a terrific explosion up forward."

A geyser of water struck him, he said, and the next thing he knew he was swimming.

He and three companions, none of them wearing lifebelts, fashioned a makeshift raft from floating hatch cover boards. A fifth man, who was nearby, was unable to reach the raft.

Soroko said that all knew they were in an area infested by sharks, and that fish frequently nibbled at their bare feet.

While it was still dark, said Soroko, a naval patrol plane appeared overhead, dropped flares and spotted his party.

"The plane finally landed on water 'really too rough to land on,' said Soroko, and after maneuvering for so long that the heavy seas split one of its pontoons and caused it to take water, the bomber came close enough for three of the men to swim to it from the raft.

The fourth man later was pulled aboard after a life belt and line had been tossed to him.

Drivers Uninjured As Cars Sidewipe On Route 40

Seven States and District of Columbia Are Involved in Accident

Seven states and the District of Columbia were involved in an accident at 5 o'clock yesterday morning on U. S. Route 40, near Meadow mountain, eight miles west of Frostburg.

State Trooper Harry Harrison, who investigated, said an automobile driven by Sam Hazo, Dayton, Beach, Fla., and a machine operated by William Short, Emporia, Kas., sidewiped on a hill approaching the mountain.

After the collision, the car driven by Short went down a three foot embankment. Short, however, was not injured nor was the owner of the car, Henry Brylawski, Washington, D. C., who was asleep on the front seat. Hazo also was uninjured.

The left sides of both cars were damaged considerably. Hazo's estimated at $100 and Brylawski's at $150.

A charge of reckless driving was placed against the operator of each car, Trooper Harrison said, and each was fined $1 and costs by Magistrate Charles Zeller, Grantsville.

Short, who has a Kansas driver's license, was hitch hiking to his home in New Jersey when he was picked up in Ohio by Brylawski, carrying a District of Columbia license but whose home is in Colorado.

Hazo, a salesman, works in Florida and has Florida license tags on his automobile. Trooper Harrison said, but resides in Pittsburgh.

The seventh state involved was Maryland, where the accident occurred.

Motorist Fined $10 and Costs For Speeding

A fine of $10 and costs was assessed against John Arthur McDade, of 513 Fayette street, yesterday in trial magistrates' court by Magistrate Frank A. Perdue on a charge of operating a car in excess of fifty miles an hour.

McDade was arrested Saturday on Braddock road by Trooper M. Frank Beamer.

Sufficient Warning Will Be Given Before Test Blackout Is Held

"Test blackouts will not be held without sufficient warning," Colonel Henry S. Barrett, state director of air raid precautions, reiterated yesterday. Rumors of a surprise blackout have been circulating throughout the state which have caused many people to swamp their local control centers with inquiries and interfering with their vital work. Test blackouts can only be conducted with the authorization of the First Interceptor Command and any community that proceeds without this authority is subject to censure.

"Blackout jitters and their tendency to create hysteria must stop," Colonel Barrett cautioned. He continued—"There is only one thing to do during these critical days and that is to be prepared for any eventuality. If the people are ready the cause of worry and alarm ceases. Certainly the enemy is not going to give us an advance notice of attack."

Potomac Edison Taxes Increase Fifty Per Cent

Company Reports $31,781.89 Increase in Net Income for 1941

Operating revenues from all departments of the Potomac Edison Company for the year 1941 increased 13.2 per cent as compared with the preceding year but operating expenses increased seventeen per cent, according to the annual report of the company which has just been made public.

The report shows that tax adjustments for 1941 were approximately $700,000 higher than in the preceding year, an increase of almost fifty per cent. Net income for the year was $31,781.89, an increase of $31,781.89 over 1940.

In 1941 the company paid $2,144,672.54 in taxes compared with $1,468,993.46 in 1940, an increase of $675,679.08. Total operating revenues in 1941 were $8,972,389.75 as compared to $7,929,343.35 in 1940 or an increase of $1,043,046.40.

The annual report shows that the company had 237 industrial customers in 1941; municipal street lighting 119; commercial users 10,307 and 72,714 residential customers. The company generated 378,693,721 kilowatt hours in 1941 and purchased 29,076,735 kilowatt hours for a total of 407,770,456.

Regular quarterly dividends on the six per cent and seven per cent cumulative preferred stocks and dividends amounting to $3.50 per share on the common stock of the company were paid during the year.

During 1941 the company suffered a loss of the services through death of W. H. Brewer, E. L. Coblenz and Thomas Hassett who were directors. Owen E. Hitchins, A. P. MacDonald and Lorenzo Semple, Jr., were elected directors of the company in 1941.

R. Paul Smith, president of the company, who submitted the report, said that in order to co-operate with the government in defense war efforts, normal operations in all departments of the company cannot be expected. Restricted use of automobiles, tires, and other facilities, create problems never before encountered. Nevertheless, he said, the 1,600 employees have proven their ability to master the difficulties that have arisen in past years, which provides a basis for the belief that the organization will be able successfully to solve the problems that it now faces.

Cresaptown Residents Protest New Rates Of Water Company

BALTIMORE, April 1 (P.)—The complaint of a group of Cresaptown residents against a new schedule of rates and regulations proposed by the Cumberland Suburban Water Company, will be heard by the public service commission April 8. The water company proposed that, effective today, use of water by its customers be metered and the rate be $1.50 for a 3,000 gallon minimum rather than the $1.50 per dwelling monthly rate now in effect. Because of the complaint, the company extended its service to non-metered consumers to April 10 but announced it would discontinue service to all without meters after that date.

Maryland Committee On Government Will Meet April 10

The Maryland Committee for Representative Government, located in Baltimore, announces a luncheon meeting open to the public, will be held Friday April 10 at 12:30 p. m. in the Hotel Belvedere, in Baltimore.

United States Senator Harry P. Byrd, of Virginia, chairman of the Joint Committee on Reduction of Non-essential Federal Expenditures will be the guest speaker and discuss the work of his committee.

Mayor and Council Hold Last Session Of Fiscal Year

Summers Is Appointed Watchman at Mexico Farms Airport

Meeting for the final session of the 1941-42 fiscal year yesterday morning the mayor and city council heard reports for the past month, approved the March payroll and transacted several other matters.

David H. "Jock" Murrie, who has been employed for several months at the new airport at Wiley Ford, was notified yesterday afternoon by Acting Mayor Thomas F. Conlon that council by unanimous vote decided his services will not be required after April 4.

In a letter to Murrie yesterday afternoon, Conlon wrote:

"Mr. Ralph L. Rizer, city engineer, who was present at the special session of the mayor and city council of Cumberland held April 1, advised the members of the council that the work on the airport for which you were engaged has now been completed.

"Should other employment develop within your capacity, this body will be very glad to consider your application for a position."

The council named Joseph P. Summers watchman at the Mexico Farms airport at a salary of $80 a month to succeed Alvon Sherlock. The bid of the Commercial Press of $227.50 for letterheads and envelopes was accepted.

The police report showed 180 arrests and $293 collected in fines last month. There were 39 fire calls with an estimated $3,000 loss.

Ralph L. Rizer, city engineer, was instructed to inform Local 1874, Textile Workers Union of America, the cost of removing rails from Cumberland streets is prohibitive and that the War Production Board has advised against such action. The union proposed the move in an effort to obtain scrap.

Suit Requests That Two Deeds Be Set Aside

Mrs. Edith Longerbeam Seeks To Recover Property by Court Order

A suit requesting that two deeds, one dated May 5, 1938, and the second dated August 3, 1940, be vacated has been filed in circuit court by Mrs. Edith E. Longerbeam against Archibald and Etta L. Longerbeam, as executor of the estate of the late Charles J. Longerbeam.

Mrs. Edith Longerbeam, widow of George H. Longerbeam, who died December 25, 1928, contends that she recently learned of the "fraudulent connivance" of Charles J. Longerbeam, executor of her husband's estate, and Archibald Longerbeam, executor of Charles J. Longerbeam's estate.

The "connivance," she alleges, resulted in Mr. and Mrs. Archibald Longerbeam being vested with interests of George H. Longerbeam which belong to her.

The complainant, through her attorneys, E. Austin James and Benjamin B. Rosenstock, Frederick, and David Kauffman, Cumberland, requested that Archibald Longerbeam, as executor, be required to account for money received by Charles J. Longerbeam which she alleges belongs to her.

Asks Proportionate Share
She requests further that the 337½ acre Six Mile property, west of the Narrows, that was conveyed in the two deeds, be declared in favor of herself in proportion to her interest which she asks the court to determine.

Finally, Mrs. Longerbeam asks that an injunction be passed restraining Archibald Longerbeam, executor, and Mr. and Mrs. Archibald Longerbeam from disposing of any of the assets that came into their hands through Charles J. Longerbeam and which may be the property of the complainant.

The property transfers, Mrs. Edith Longerbeam charges, were "part of the continued scheme" of Charles and Archibald Longerbeam to "defraud and defeat" her rights.

The planning and execution of such convoys is of paramount importance, Forrester told law enforcement officers and highway engineers attending the course.

Control of military traffic in conjunction with local civilian defense groups was also explained by Forrester and the part which military police would play in this phase of traffic was outlined.

In the case of war disasters during which blackouts, air-raids, evacuations and general local war plans would be put into effect were described by the FBI agent, who is a specialist in this type of work.

British Lose 15 Bombers in Raid On Paris Suburbs

But Returning Aviators Report Success in Major Attacks

LONDON, April 2.—Back again over the suburbs of Paris and into north and northwest Germany, the RAF blasted early today at the Matford works.

Fifteen bombers were "missing from these far-ranging raids, interpreted authoritatively here as primarily blows to assist Russia. The Paris factories are reported turning out vehicles for the Germans in the east and the German railroads are strained to the utmost in transporting supplies for spring offensive action against the Red armies.

RAF's Biggest Loss

It was the RAF's biggest loss in a single night since the Nov. 7 raid on Berlin which thirty-seven British planes were destroyed, and it was above the average of ten to twelve which the RAF feels it can afford to lose in one night at the present scale of operations.

Bright moonlight aided the attackers and the German night fighters alike.

Canadian airmen led by Johnny Fauquier, Ottawa bus flier, told of blasting debris high into the sky at Poissy, eight miles west of Paris on the left bank of the Seine, of setting bright fires and of feeling the blast of bombs which made didict hits on the Matford factory from extremely low altitudes.

One of the Canadian-flown Wellington bombers came out of the target area at 500 feet, and the pilot said the bomb blast "nearly lifted us out of the sky."

Latest reports from Vichy said that fairly heavy damage was caused at Poissy, with the Matford factory the chief target. The French reported that one British plane was shot down in flames at nearby Marly, with three members of the crew killed and one made prisoner.

Paris Suburbs Bombed

Paris anti-aircraft defenses were active during the alert, from 4 to 5.30 a. m., and bombs were reported dropped in several western and northwestern Paris outskirts.

It also was learned today, a Vichy dispatch said, that at least forty persons were killed, including fourteen children, and seventy-two wounded in the region of Boulogne-Sur-Mer Wednesday afternoon during the RAF bombardment of the channel coast.

(Ford headquarters in Detroit said the Ford Motor Co. had had no contact with the Matford plant since the fall of France. The concern was formed about ten years ago, Ford interests combining with the Mathis Company, a French Alsatian firm, for the manufacture of light cars.)

Matford Plant Bombed

Now reported turning out twenty trucks a day for the Nazis, the Matford plant was bombed in daylight March 5 five days after the big RAF raid on the Renault works, first in the Paris area.

In addition to the raids on German rail centers, the Le Havre docks and other centers in France and Belgium were raided overnight and leaflets, intended for the Nazi army of occupation, were dropped over Brussels.

One of the bomber pilots who attacked northwest Germany said the attack was pressed home despite snow and sleet which stretched the return trip to four hours.

He reported hits on a freight train near the Rhine and that "the rear gunner counted twenty separate fires among freight cars."

One pilot flew so low he could see a man firing a rifle at his plane. On the return trip, ice from the propellers tore holes in the fuselage as the plane fought a 65-mile-an-hour wind.

Japs Penetrate

skirmishing, air raids, and artillery dueling.

Official observers said it appeared likely that General Yamashita planned soon to supplement indecisive land and air attacks with a flanking naval foray from the China Sea such as figured in his conquest of Malaya.

Jap Warships Shell Coast

The suspicion first arose when Japanese warships shelled American-Philippine positions along the west coast of Bataan yesterday for the first time in two months.

A warship-supported attack on General Wainwright's left flank would be especially dangerous because of the curtain of concentrated artillery fire that could be laid down by the heavy guns of the naval craft. Beyond the range of the guns of Corregidor fortress and free of air attack, the ships would risk only the possibility of hits by defending batteries of field guns.

The War department said in a morning communique that the heavy Japanese land attack, carried out all Tuesday night and which won several outpost positions, was succeeded by aggressive patrol activities and a number of sharp skirmishes, but no further general action.

Meanwhile, Japanese artillery and dive bombers hammered at troops in forward areas and in various fronts and real positions, including the beach defenses.

For the tenth consecutive day, night and day air raids continued on the Manila bay Harbor defenses. Corregidor and the other outlying island fortifications engaged in an artillery duel with enemy batteries on the bay's south shore in Cavite province.

7,000 islands and reefs in the archipelago, and that so far the enemy has landed on only five.

Americans Hold Manila Bay

The Japanese control the principal cities and highways in central and northern Luzon and a few ports in southeastern Luzon. However, the main prize, Manila bay, still is beyond their reach.

Recently the Japanese occupied five points on northern Mindoro. They maintain a small force on the island of Masbate, occupy Davao and Zamboanga, at the eastern and western extremities of Mindanao, and also hold the island of Jolo.

The Japanese do not control the inner Philippine islands or the inland waters. Occasionally an enemy warship raids shipping and ports in the so-called "inland sea." But the Japanese apparently are afraid to take a destroyer or a light cruiser on patrol there.

From what I have seen of the American torpedobombers in action, I believe a few squadrons of those hard-hitting, speedy vessels in which Gen. Douglas MacArthur began his trip to Australia could keep the islands' inner shipping lanes entirely clear of the enemy.

There are dozens of airfields and scores of ports in the inner Philippines from which American planes and ships could operate. There are American and Filipino fighting forces on almost every island.

Japs Frequently Attacked

The war goes on not only on Bataan but on Mindanao, where the Moros, under United States officers, frequently attack the Japanese.

The Japanese are reported to have put in uniform several thousand young Japanese nationals who lived at Davao before the war. Yet despite their overwhelming numerical superiority, the invaders are said to fear the Moros so much that every night hundreds of the Japanese return to their ships to sleep.

The Moros turned back one Japanese drive south of Davao in January.

On other islands we found American and Filipino forces which were ready to fight despite their shortage of equipment, if the Japanese should come. Our greatest difficulty in traveling through the Philippines was in answering questions about help from the United States. Everybody, everywhere asked the same questions.

To inquiries as to when Tokyo would be bombed, our customary reply was, "the bombing will start soon, probably the middle of this month (March)."

Show Interest in Japan

Then someone would proffer the polite objection that "we believe it would be difficult for us to bomb Tokyo before April, sir, as the air fields in Alaska still are covered with snow and objectives in Japan probably would be hidden by clouds."

Some bright youngster usually would add:

"We believe arrangements can be made for the United States to use the Russian air fields at Vladivostok and on the Kamchatka peninsula, inasmuch as the Russians and Americans are fighting the same war, although on different fronts, and the Russians need American supplies while Americans need Siberian bases."

The people frequently expressed their respect for President Roosevelt as a forceful leader. Their feeling for General MacArthur can be described only as reverential.

They'd say:

"We believe, sir, that the MacArthur line is impregnable. We are convinced that the man has not yet been born who can defeat General MacArthur."

They pronounced it Mac-ar-tour, with the accent on the last syllable.

servation Corps, a proposal which Hillman opposed. It was not made clear whether Hillman was the author of the program, or what other officials may have endorsed.

The NYA, Hillman contended, was serving a useful purpose by training defense workers. He is a member of the NYA's advisory committee.

The manpower training program cannot afford the delay which will result if we slow down or stop one of our training agencies and transfer the important load it carries to another organization," he said.

President Roosevelt already has gone on record in opposition to McKellar's bill and today, in observance of the CCC's ninth anniversary, he declared "there is a real place for the CCC during this emergency and it will be called upon more and more to perform tasks which will strengthen our country."

The chief executive's statement was made in a letter read during an anniversary celebration at Fort Hunt, CCC camp in nearby Virginia, attended by Paul V. McNutt, federal security administrator, and J. J. McEntee, the CCC national director.

Convict Leaves

and kill Cassius Barber when he got out of prison, and he did it—one of three killings carried out in a twenty-four-hour period Tuesday and Wednesday, during a 900 mile tour of the state.

Taken into circuit court before Judge H. Russel Holland, he pleaded guilty.

Life at Hard Labor

"Since nothing I could say would have any effect on you, I have no comment," said Judge Holland, who then gave him the most severe punishment possible under Michigan law—life at hard labor and solitary confinement.

Piccone, who is 29, signed a formal confession before he was taken into court. In it he related how he had been "farmed out" to Barber as a juvenile delinquent; how he had been treated as a member of the family until there was some trouble with the old man over spending money; how he finally beat the old man and fled; how he stole a pistol from Barber and later used it to force a young school teacher to drive him from Detroit to near Barber's farm where he intended to kill the farmer; how she had fallen and he was convicted of felonious assault because of her injury, and how Barber at his trial had identified the stolen gun. All that was two years ago.

Then, March 17 of this year he was released and with $18 in his pocket, he bought a gun.

Tuesday night he went out to the Barber farm in the rain and sleet. He stopped first at the home of Roman C. Potter, 75, Barber's cousin, who lived a quarter of a mile from Barber's home. Piccone said he wanted to get dry.

But, his confession went on, Potter realized what Piccone intended doing—killing Barber, and wrestled with him.

"I pulled the trigger," Piccone said. Potter dropped dead.

He walked, then, to Barber's home, where he found Roy Thorpe, another neighbor farmer, who had just driven into the yard.

Piccone forced Thorpe to enter Barber's home side by side with him. Barber was sitting at a table reading, his wife nearby.

"Mr. Barber said 'It's you,'" Piccone said in his confession. "And I said 'yes.' He noticed the gun and I said 'I told you I was going to do it.' He (Barber) raised his hand and I shot."

Piccone then forced Thorpe to drive him on a 900 mile tour of the state during which he killed Carl McKenzie, 40, near Concord, Mich., ninety miles from the scene of the original crimes. McKenzie had approached Piccone and Thorpe where they had stopped to rest.

Piccone surrendered to state police without a struggle when he was accosted at 3:30 a. m. this morning. He confessed, pleaded guilty and was on his way to prison twelve hours later.

Thorpe, who was with Piccone when state police halted them this morning, told officers he was in fear of his life all during his trip with Piccone who kept a revolver jammed in his side.

Farmers Discuss

war one were emphasized by district supervisors, conservation experts, and farmers themselves.

The community leaders were charged with responsibility of setting an example to their neighbors and helping their neighbors follow through the soil-conserving practices.

"Agriculture represents eighty-five per cent of the wealth in Frederick and Carroll counties," said Carroll County Agent L. C. Burns. "What are we doing to keep it in repair? What will our farms be like when my son and yours are grown up?"

The seven simple steps, plus terracing and strip cropping and other still more effective soil conservation methods were laid down as the immediate goal in the coming planting season.

"We need your help in getting these practices adopted," said Walter Burrell, chairman of the district supervisors, presiding at the meeting in the Methodist Church hall that once was the old Libertytown school.

Called Key Men

"Your supervisors look upon you as their key men, as their official representatives," Frederick County Agent Henry Shoemaker declared.

"He suggested the six invite their neighbors to meetings at their homes with soil technicians to bring more and more farms under conservation control."

"As the snow melts, water stands in the furrows on my farm," said J. A. Angle, farmer and member of the Frederick county roads board. "It will help tide over the summer drouth. Strip cropping means less work and less labor. It's easier to work on the level than up and down hill. Grass strips between plowed and cultivated strips hold the water..."

The suggested seven simple steps can be put into effect without cost, with the more technical terraces and strip cropping started later.

Carl Inghing, district conservationist, said, adding:

"One farmer told me he didn't have the money. He said he'd wait until after the war. But it doesn't take money. And if we wait until after the war, it may be too late."

"Then we might have someone telling us what we could or couldn't do."

Other farmers told of erosion control and increased yields through conservation practices, and Burns asserted "the job of keeping our farmlands in repair will get done directly in proportion to the work that you men do yourselves."

The Seven Measures

The seven measures recommended immediately, to be supplemented with terraces, contour strip cropping, and drainage, are:

"Plow, plant and cultivate across the slope, leaving the gullies in sod."

"Follow all cultivated crops with a cover crop."

"Keep all land covered over in winter."

"Lime and fertilize pastures and provide mid-summer pasture."

"Prevent crop losses on wet land by making provision for adequate drainage."

"Protect your forest lands. In selling timber, cut only mature trees and protect young trees."

"Meet production goals as far as possible by more intensive use of the better land rather than by plowing up land that should not be cultivated."

board officials. Hassett said that a German station, another in Vichy and station Debunk, which purports to be in this country, but actually in Europe, had broadcast Dies' accusations.

Hassett asserted that the White House was not drawing any conclusions, adding that he thought the "conclusions are quite obvious."

At Jasper, Tex., Dies replied that the best way to stop Axis powers from quoting such charges is to rid the public payroll of men who have been affiliated with Communist-controlled organizations.

Rep. Voorhis, who discussed Gratton in the House today, has not always seen eye to eye with Dies on committee procedure. In fact, he complained earlier in the week that the charges in Dies' letter to Wallace had been made without the knowledge of the committee, and without having given a hearing to the men accused.

Today, however, he said he had received information about Gratton which "makes a most serious picture."

Criticizes Gratton

"On yesterday," he said "it was brought to my attention that Mr. C. Hartley Gratton in May of 1940, which was between the time of the signing of the pact between Russia and Germany and the time that Germany attacked Russia, wrote the foreword to the so-called 'German white paper,' which was an attempt to lay the blame for the invasion of Poland on certain American officials, and that this foreword consists all the way through a vigorous denunciation of this country's foreign policy of support to England and France."

"The German white paper was distributed in America through Manfred Zapp, the head of Transocean News Service, which was shown conclusively to be a Nazi propaganda agency."

"I understand that the vice-president has stated that thorough investigations will be made of all these charges in order that justice may be done to individuals and the government service protected as well. I believe that in connection with such an investigation this fact about the German white paper, taken together with the other matters about Mr. Gratton presented in Dr. Dies' letter makes a most serious picture indeed so far as he is concerned."

Runaway Barrage Balloon Is Found Near Altoona, Pa.

Cable Catches in Mountains after Breaking Loose at Akron, Ohio

HUNTINGTON, Pa., April 2 (AP)—A giant sausage-like barrage balloon ended a runaway flight of several hundred miles by near Akron, O., late today by bumping into the side of towering Tussey mountain and sagging helplessly among a clump of trees.

T. Roy Morton, district forester, of Petersburg, Pa., came upon the balloon as it rested across a fire path about one-half way up the desolate mountain above what is known as Diamond Valley.

Looks Badly Damaged

"It looked pretty well damaged, dangling among the trees," said Morton. "The marking on the side giving the pressure was plain. The long cable was stretched among the trees."

The site was about thirty miles east of Altoona, Pa., and 130 miles east of Pittsburgh. A crew of the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company, which had followed the big bag in bus as it soared crazily across Eastern Ohio and Western Pennsylvania, arrived tonight. State motor police took up guard.

The balloon broke loose from Goodyear's Wingfoot Lake airlock at 10:13 a. m., and was swept east rapidly. Officials broadcast warnings of the danger from the dangling cable.

Delayed near Pittsburgh

For a few moments the balloon settled on a hill near Vandergrift, twenty-five miles northeast of Pittsburgh, after the cable struck a distributing circuit of the West Penn power company and then snagged and tore power lines serving homes in Vandergrift, Apollo and other Kiskiminetas river valley points.

Before firemen and police could reach the bag on its first descent, it floated away, tearing a power line at Dime, five miles from Vandergrift, and another line between Kittanning and Eddington.

Then an up-current sent the balloon to a 5,000 foot level and it travelled eastward fast, finally settling on the mountain.

Compromise May

dia, changed his mind about leaving for home next Monday. He declared, instead, that "I think I can possibly do something useful next week."

He had before him already the previous rejections of Britain's proposal by the Sikhs, warriors of the Punjab, and by the extremist Mahasabha group of Hindus.

Yet to be heard from formally, however, was the Moslem league, second largest of India's complex political and religious groups, whose working committee meets tomorrow at Allahabad.

The text of the Congress party's rejection and of its counter suggestions was not expected to be made public immediately.

It was intimated strongly, however, that the British war cabinet might be asked to make some concession to the insistence of this and other strong Indian groups for an immediate voice in defense responsibility rather than acceptance of purely British leadership.

With the British army in Burma the last obstacle between the Japanese and India, there were unconfirmed reports that Sir Archibald P. Wavell, commander in chief of India's defense, might participate in future discussions with the Congress party leaders.

Wavell's decision whether he could command the defense forces if responsibility behind the Indian front were transferred to Indian hands might govern the war cabinet's choice on whether to yield on that point.

(The Exchange Telegraph agency in London said Indian moderate leaders had received tentative assurance that the formula for defense coordination advanced by the moderate Sir Tej Bahadur Sapru would be acceptable to Cripps. This formula was said to call for a minister of defense coordination with a small defense council including the commander in chief and presided over by a minister. The council would deal with civilian defense and internal security.)

Criticize British Proposals

The Congress party's reply was understood to criticize particularly the British proposal to keep the direction of India's defense in British hands, and to question the opinion which Britain would give for certain provinces to remain outside the future India union.

The reply was said to have examined the British proposals in the light of past declarations by the party, especially in the resolution at the meeting last December with "peoples who are subject to aggression and are fighting for their freedom" and said "only a free and independent India can be in a position to undertake the defense of the country on a national basis."

"The whole background of India is one of hostility and distrust of the British government," that resolution said.

Editorials in the Indian press, meanwhile, voiced resentment over what editors understood to be an unfavorable reaction in the American press to the reluctance of India's leaders to come to an agreement with the British, these editorials said India's complex problems are not easily understood from afar.

INTERPRETING THE WAR NEWS

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

A bold Japanese sea-borne thrust high up the northwest coast of Burma to out-flank British defenders on the Prome front is reported from Chungking. British confirmation is lacking as this is written; but previous Japanese occupation of the Andaman Islands to the southward in the Indian ocean, the first actual Nipponese invasion of India, paved the way for it.

There are strong mountain barriers in Burma between Akyab, the reported Japanese landing place, and the important oil wells in the valley of the Irrawaddy. British naval forces in the Indian ocean also still must be reckoned with, although their present strength is only conjectural.

British Get Reinforcements

A Rome broadcast recently reported heavy British naval reinforcements moving into the Indian ocean. A squadron including two battleships and a plane-carrier was said to have rounded Africa headed to challenge Japanese claims of mastery of the Bay of Bengal. London made no comment; but it has been obvious since the fall of Singapore and the Dutch Indies that a fresh challenge to British sea power was looming in the Indian ocean.

Japanese planes and submarines based in the Andamans could provide an effective screen for such a troop movement as Chungking reports. A brief air raid scare at Colombo, Ceylon, across the Bay of Bengal, indicates Japanese air power.

que from New Delhi, quiet had fallen after the heavy and bloody fighting that preceded the establishment of the present Chinese positions around Nanyung, twelve miles above Tougou.

These positions had been formed by the jcture of the Chinese Tougou garrison of 8,000 to 10,000 with other Chinese forces to the north. The Tougou garrison, said the Chungking army spokesman, for a week was under assault of 40,000 Japanese.

Later a Chungking dispatch quoted a Chinese military spokesman as saying that the Japanese vanguard on the Tougou front was advancing west of the railway and had reached a point to the southwest of Yedashu, which is six miles above Nanyung.

The Chinese were declared still in control of the railway between Yedashu and a point immediately north of Tougou.

There was no confirmation of a report broadcast by the German-controlled Paris radio that the Japanese had gone up the Sittang to land at Yedashu.

had "occupied several populated places in offensive operations" yesterday, and a supplementary announcement said a cavalry unit under "Comrade Timofeev" had beaten off superior tank-equipped Nazi forces which had attacked his outfit.

"The Germans lost in killed alone more than 650 officer and soldiers," the communique said.

On another unidentified sector the Russians asserted they repulsed another German effort to capture village "K," and that eighteen German tanks were smashed and hundreds of Nazis slain at the approaches to the village.

In the far north the Red fleet announced the destruction of another German submarine operating in the Barents Sea on the United Nations' supply route to Murmansk.

Japanese Fail

crippled ninety-six Japanese planes since March ten at a cost of only twelve of their own planes, of which five crews were saved.

The Australian radio reported from Darwin that the red ball was being removed from the insignia of United States planes to avoid any possible confusion with the red emblem of Japan. This would leave the United States planes with a white star on a blue field.

That the Australians and Americans are making use of the time for big-scale preparations also was indicated by air minister Arthur S. Drakeford.

He said Americans were helping to switch Royal Australian air force pilots from trainer planes to fast combat craft in a tremendous speed-up of the development of new RAAF fliers.

Heretofore, the Australians who had completed trainer flights had to finish their instruction abroad or in actual operations in Australia.

Plan New Bases

A number of RAAF stations, assembly plants and other facilities have been handed over to the American air forces, Drakeford said, and millions of pounds are being allocated to provide new bases.

In ground forces, too, Australia was rapidly keying herself up to the peak of war preparation. A broad reorganization of the army command was virtually completed with the appointment of Lieut. Gen. Henry Gordon Bennett as a corps commander and the assignment of other high officers to action posts.

Announcements were expected soon on provisions for more complete fusion of the American, Australian, Dutch and any other Allied forces under the supreme command of General Douglas MacArthur.

Bengal, indicates Japanese air scouting in that vicinity. It tends to confirm the Chungking reports of Japanese troop convoy movements up the Burma coast of the bay. Whether such movements are intended as a flanking stroke at the rear of the Prome defense front or as an immediate invasion threat at the mainland of India remains to be seen.

Between Akyab, chief Burmese west coast port, and the valley of the Irrawaddy to the east tower the Arakan Yoma mountains, a southern spur of the Himalayas. It is the most rugged range of the three that traverse Burma from north to south, including peaks that exceed 10,000 feet.

No Roads Available

There are no available roads, only trails, crossing from west to east through the Arakan Yomas. With disaffected Burmese natives cooperating with the Japanese invaders, however, the British problem of safeguarding their rear and right flank without too greatly weakening their already thin defense line at the Prome gateway to the oilfields is obviously serious.

Lack of planes to match the air-power Japan has concentrated in Burma has already gravely imperiled the Anglo-Chinese defense front. The defenders have given ground inch by inch, their high command plainly hoping to hold on until the wet monsoon season comes to deluge the Irrawaddy delta and the valleys of its tributaries. That would grant the Allies several rainy months in which to bolster their forces.

Japanese resort to a sea-borne movement to outflank the Prome corner looks like a bold gamble to beat the Monsoon season. It could compel an Anglo-Chinese withdrawal; even at the cost of destruction and surrender of the Burma oil well region along the Irrawaddy north of Prome, unless British air and sea power in the Bay of Bengal can foil the flanking move.

Moser Asks Parole For Joseph Barnes To Take Defense Job

Joseph James Barnes, 21, of this county, who is serving an eight-year term for larceny was among four Maryland convicts recommended by Herman M. Moser, state parole director, for commutation of sentences to enable them to go to work immediately in defense industries and on farms.

Barnes was given a parole in Allegany county circuit court in 1938 for larceny upon condition he repay $485 for damages to a car he had taken. Several weeks later he broke his parole when he broke into the Robertson service station near Lonaconing.

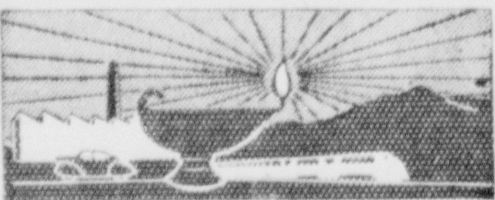

When arraigned in circuit court Barnes' parole was lifted and he was sentenced to eight years in prison. Barnes has been offered a defense job as an electric welder, Moser said.

Reminder of the Way to Peace

COMES NOW Good Friday, anniversary of the Crucifixion of Jesus Christ. As is right and proper, the people of all Christendom will lay aside labors for some time and will lament during the hours of Christ's suffering—the hours from when the people would not allow Pilate to release Him until the soldiers lowered Him from the Cross and found Him dead.

It is written today as it was written in the hour of the Crucifixion that the suffering of Christ on Calvary was not the greatest of suffering. Greater than and now is the suffering of those who will not believe, or, believing, will not abide in the light. It is they who echo the priests of Golgotha—"We have no king but Caesar." So saying they gave measures of their understanding. It was not yet for them to know that Christ is the Son of God. So it is with many.

The lamentation of the great feast of the Crucifixion is, however, not only for self-examination and meditation and the weighing in each of faith, but also a time of preparation for the great feast to come. It was darkest then—that first Good Friday—but men of strong faith did not waver. As they mourned they looked for the sign. They did not look in vain. Nor will any one look in vain who looks with a contrite heart and the faith of a child.

In the larger world, men contend among themselves. Caesar's subjects labor and slay. But Christ is King, and His way is peace, and it is for that way that men of good will pray.

Three Just Income Tax Allowances

THE BURDENED TAXPAYERS will heartily approve the proposal of the federal Treasury department that some reasonable allowances be made for those who are forced to bear heavy medical expenses.

If anything is justified for exemption from the income tax, this should take top rank and, as Gen. Hugh S. Johnson says in his column published on this page today, it should have been made long ago. But it is certainly more necessary now in the light of the heavier tax burdens caused by the huge war costs—and the senseless extravagances on which no reasonable curb has as yet been placed by Washington legislators despite the cry for it long heard from the country.

Gen. Johnson sets forth the reasons why these medical burdens should be relieved and there is no need for repetition here.

Two other Treasury department proposals for income tax exemptions also command general approval and should be adopted before the excitement abates over the fact that the Treasury actually suggests such things—innovations since the days of Andrew Mellon.

One is the proposal to extend credit for all children between 18 and 21 who are in school, which is a step that also should have been taken long ago. In fact, there is no good reason why the age limit here should not be lifted higher in view of the fact that many dependent children who are taking technical and professional courses cannot possibly complete their educational training within that age limit. It is just as much a burden to support those above 21 as those below that age, even more so in view of the time it has to be borne by sacrificing parents.

The other proposal is for a ten per cent credit in cases where a wife works outside the home and is obliged to incur additional family expenses although the credit is not to exceed $100. This is reasonable enough and only fair as women who are obliged to work are usually in need of such allowances.

All these proposals should most certainly be adopted.

Lew Ayres Forfeits Career in the Films

LEW AYRES, star of the "Dr. Kildare" pictures, is working in a camp for conscientious objectors. He prefers that to entering the armed forces of his country. One big theater chain has withdrawn his films and others are expected to follow.

The draft board which had the final say in the case of Ayres says that the actor "honestly and sincerely is a conscientious objector" and as such is entitled to the "out" provided by the government for such people.

Admitting, however, that Ayres is honest in his opinions, there are many who still hold his attitude against him. In fact a large majority will assert that he's all wrong. Many will say that there are not many in the armed forces who are there because they like war. They are serving because their country needs their services.

Coleen Kelly, who sank the Japanese battleship Haruna, was, no doubt, opposed to war, but when the Japs forced war upon us he did his duty—and died doing it. Neither is it likely that Gen. MacArthur approves of war. In fact, it would be difficult to find anyone who likes war.

There are some who will excuse Ayres on the grounds he is so "honest" and so "sincere" about it. At least, they will say, he came out in the open with his convictions. He knew, or at least he can be presumed to have known that he was all washed up as an actor, but still he went to camp as a laborer rather than go to war.

In a way one can easily feel sorry for Lew Ayres, sorry that such a fine actor feels the way he does. If everybody felt the same it wouldn't be long before the Japs would be over to take charge of the camps for conscientious objectors.

Anyway, no matter how you figure it, when Ayres elected to go to a camp for conscientious objectors instead of into the army or the navy he definitely and finally became an ex-actor. No promoter would dare give him a role, no theater would show his pictures. It looks as though Ayres will see the day he will wish he had gone to war.

The Razor Blade Curtailement Mystery

RECENT ANNOUNCEMENT by the Office of Price Administration that razor blades would be rationed down to a blade a week for every self-shaver in spite of the fact that they were turning in their old blades caused consternation and a rush to buy stocks on hand. Included were the inevitable would-be greedy profiteers, even sharp women, who bought excessive quantities at various stores.

Men possibly had some excuse for trying to lay in a reasonable supply so long as the blades were available by reason of a natural apprehension over what "she" might think and how "she" might react to the "4 o'clock shadow" all decently groomed men seek to avoid.

Now, however, comes another announcement from the OPA to the effect that there is certain to be a plentiful supply of razor blades, something like 2,400,000,000, which ought to do and which brings distinct relief to the worried males and a deserved slap in the face to the would-be profiteers.

But, in the making of these rationing announcements, why doesn't the OPA make up its mind about such things in the first place and not engage in this reversal nonsense? It should know by this time, from the needless price-boosting rush for sugar experienced not long since, that it is more sensible not to talk about rationing, or restricting the use of a product, until it is ready to put it into effect.

As Gen. Hugh S. Johnson might say, what the hell was this razor blade business all about, anyway—just a scheme to boost sales?

It is weeks since the Japs made any gains. If they have been stopped by the mere arrival of General MacArthur in Australia, it is easy to see what will happen when he gets his offensive started.

Motorists driving more than forty miles an hour will be sent to jail in Illinois. There was a time when forty miles an hour wasn't even considered taking-off speed.

British pilots dropped hundreds of tons of bombs on Germany in a single raid. This practice, if continued, should make an impression on the hardest object.

Gosh, maybe we won't even be able to get wooden tires! A recent scientific article claims that trees have a very high sugar content.

At last reports descending prices of New York Stock Exchange seats had reached $17,000, lowest quotation in fifty years. It is evident that there is no inflation in the stock market.

That Inferiority Feeling

By MARSHALL MASLIN

"The trouble with me," says the Sad Young man with the dirty collar, "is I've got an Inferiority Complex."

"What's holding ME back," means the Serious Young Lady whose hair needs washing, "is my Inferiority Complex."

"What gets in MY way," says I, who never can remember to buy a new pair of pants, "is that I'm naturally lazy and a genius at putting off forever the things I should have done yesterday."

I've heard much about the Inferiority Complex since I grew too old for G. A. Henry thrillers and took to reading solemn tomes about what's inside of us and what makes us tick and how many stars there are in the heavens. I've flopped many a time and have been ashamed of myself. But I've never, as far as I can remember, blamed any failure on that Inferiority Complex you hear so much about.

In fact, I've wished more than once I had an I. C. of my own because a true Inferiority Complex doesn't hold you back. It kicks you hard, it puts you out in front! It makes you do things and ride with iron hooves over your timidity and laziness and cowardice—and gets you on top.

If a man has an Inferiority Complex, he says to himself: "I must show everybody how wonderful I am. I must get something done before I die. I must invent something, win a battle, write a song, do a day's beat a drum, make my name shine in the heavens—and FORCE men to turn and look at my name!"

An Inferiority Complex is vanity. It is not fear of action, although it IS fear of being considered inferior. It tramples it, elbows it, battles madly, it is often selfish and sometimes it makes men and women do cruel things. But it is real, it is alive, it is something to work with and use. It is no dull and useless Lump. It is Quartz with streaks of gold in it.

An Inferiority Complex forces a shabby Corsican kid to be a Napoleon. And sometimes I think it made an Abraham Lincoln out of a cowering backwoods boy. . . . It isn't so bad if you know how to use it.

Efforts To Merge Federal Agencies Hit Many Snags

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Columnist

Senator Harry P. Byrd, chairman of Congress's JEC, believes Uncle Sam has a superfluity of alphabetized agencies. For example, he's in favor of merging the OGR, the OGI and the OFF into one single OGRGICFF.

It'll be a saving, however, from which a new staff for a WAAC will have to be subtracted if congress creates the WAAC as is being urged.

To make a little sense out of this gibberish.

What They Are

Senator Byrd's JEC is a congressional Joint Economy Committee. The OGR is the Office of Government Reports, run by Lowell Mellett, now under fire, not only on the ground that his outfit's superfluous, but on the further ground that he's putting up a half million dollar building in Washington in which to house its superfluity. The OGI is the Office of Co-ordinator of Information, headed by Colonel "Wild Bill" Donovan, hero of World War No. 1. OFF is Archibald MacLeish's Office of Facts and Figures—wartime facts and figures, of course.

Now, these offices' various respective names do, indeed, suggest a certain overlapping of their functions, and maybe Senator Byrd will succeed in his plan to combine them under a single heading.

Women Another Problem

He probably won't find the proposed WAAC's backers so easy to deal with, though.

WAAC will stand, provided the institutions established, for the Women's Army Auxiliary Corps. The women manifestly want it, and it's no joke to tell that sex that what it wants is something it can't have.

The scheme's to enroll all women from 18 to 65, with a view to their possibilities as wartime workers, mostly civilian, but perhaps occasionally semi-military. You might not suppose they would fancy the notion of being compulsorily registered, giving ages and all such details, and maybe some of them don't, but a formidable element of them do.

Titles Beguile

No doubt it is largely pure patriotism, but I surmise that they are ambitious, too, to acquire a designation ending in "ee." A boy, selected for army service, becomes a "selectee." Actually inducted into it, he becomes an inductee. But a gal can't refer to herself as a "housewife," or even if she's pretty well up toward the fighting front, as, say, a nurse. I'm convinced that she considers it an unjust discrimination against her.

Well, suppose she's enrolled. Thereupon she's an enrollee. Just the thing.

A women's uniform is to be provided likewise. It's to be highly becoming and it won't cost a cent. That is, it'll cost the taxpayer a good bit, but its wearer will get it free.

Finally, an enrollee, once inducted, will be entitled to the same pay as a boy inductee.

Unfortunately, there's one kink in the program.

The congressional notion has been to give WAAC officers (dadies, of course) ratings and salaries up to and including the rank of major, in the classification of mere men.

Generals, Maybe?

The gals, thus far heard from, don't see why they shouldn't be generals if they get that high in the scale.

The War department seems not disinclined to agree with them.

The other day it made a colonel of Julia Flukie, head of the army nurse corps, and a colonel is a notch ahead of a major, with a stipend of $3,000 annually, and maintenance, which is fairly liberally allowed for.

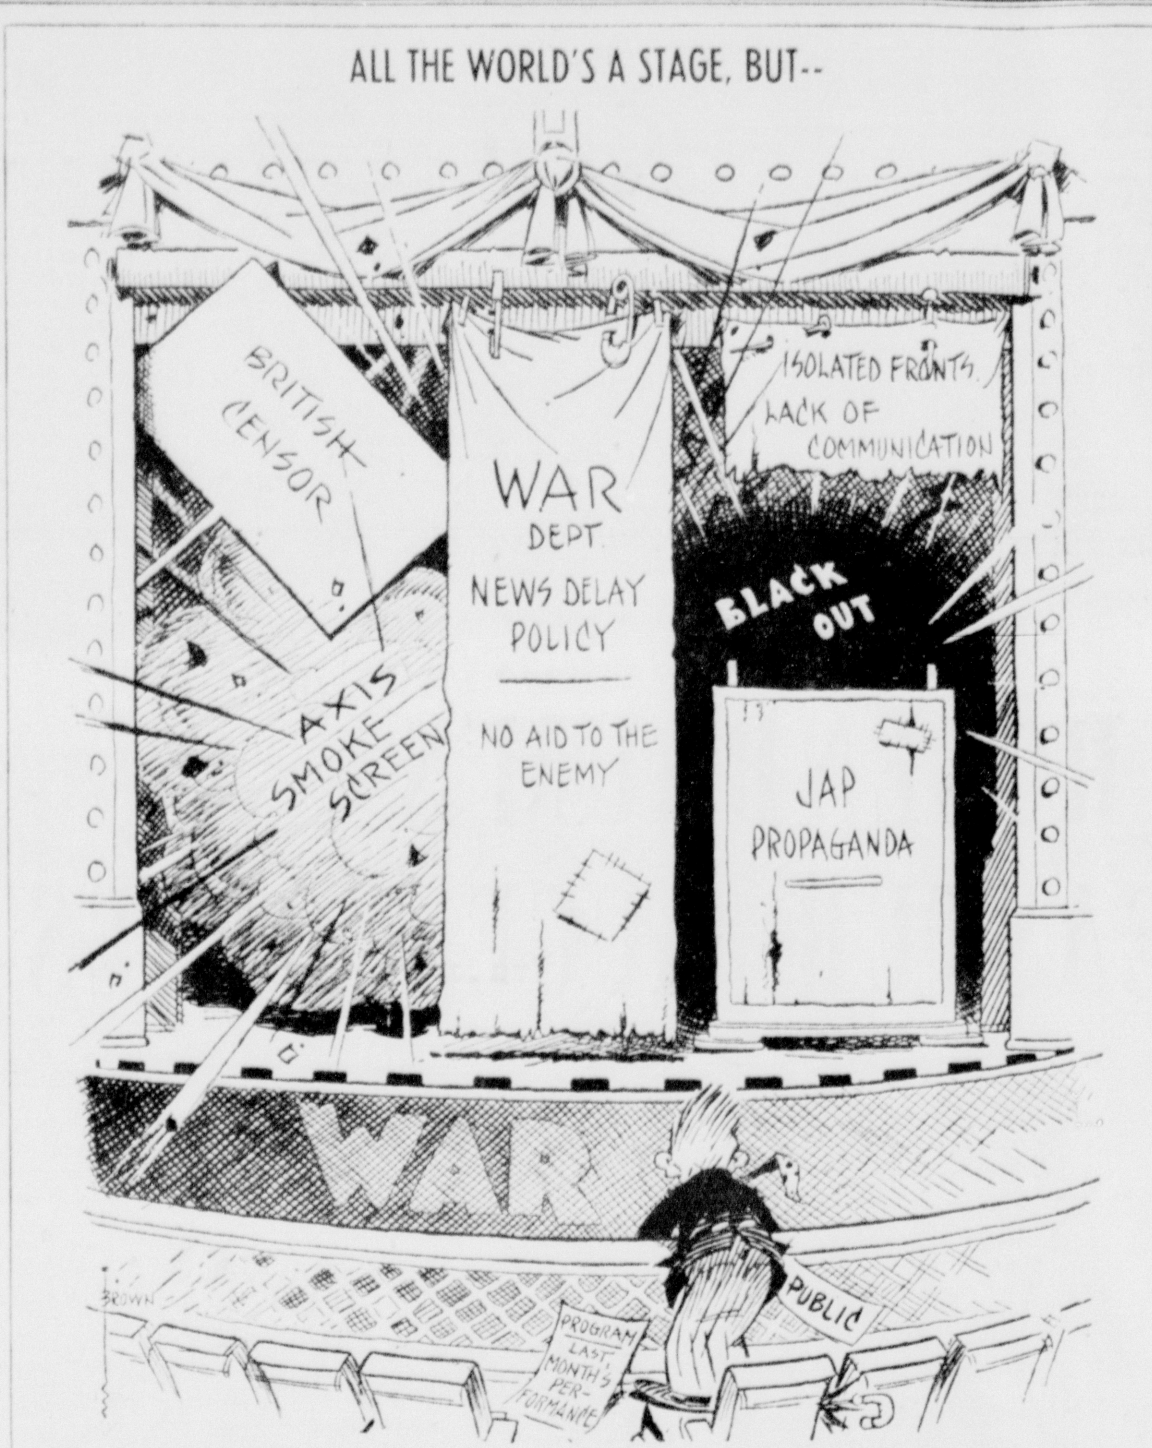

Representative Joseph C. Baldwin's congressional bill for women's army registration has been more widely advertised than Representative

Tax Allowance for Medical Burdens Is Just and Long Overdue, Johnson Says

By GEN. HUGH S. JOHNSON

WASHINGTON, April 2.—You will recall the old wheeze about the would-be borrower who won his bet with his banker that the financier's glass eye was not such perfect work that the customer couldn't tell it from the natural eye. He did so accurately and explained that he was able to do it because the glass eye showed at least a spark of human sympathy.

Apparently this fiscal phenomenon is spreading. The United States Treasury Department is considering allowing as a deduction from income for tax purposes, all above a certain percentage of income which is expended for necessary medical attention.

That should have been done long ago. As one who never before has needed much doctor's care, and who, until recently, had even taken care of, as part of an army officer's compensation, by the very competent army medical corps, this subject is one which the present writer has completely overlooked.

"It never rains but it pours" and of late your correspondent has needed the most expensive kind of civilian medical care, both for himself and his family. It has been an eye-opener which the doctors frankly recognize as a kind of curse.

Many Just Die or Suffer

Much of this kind of treatment is just too expensive to be paid for by many taxpayers. If they unhappily get in the line of fire, they either just die, or suffer whatever other terrible consequences happen to be part of the ailment. The Treasury seeks to relieve a part of this hardship.

This is due to no greed in the medical profession. Most good doctors give an astonishing portion of their time to free clinics, but in all too many instances the mere items of medical supply and hospitalization just have to be paid for by somebody, and the facilities for this are grossly inadequate.

The charitable institutions, supported by endowment and other gifts are languishing by reason of lowered interest rates on principal and the overwhelming burden on individual incomes now being borne or soon to be suffered.

Many Doctors Called

There are darker days ahead. Many of our best medical leaders have been called to service by the war and we are on the verge of calling to war duty tens of thousands of both doctors and nurses, and the government properly always takes the best in these professional fields.

The truth is that we are in a hard way in this regard and are rapidly approaching a much worse crisis. In all this talk about non-combatants—especially women—seeking a place to serve, there is no more necessary field than in the care of our ailing civilian population.

With a very little training women who are willing to accept the burdens can do more here than in any other field of which I know. It is hard, gruelling, disagreeable and demanding work, but there is no great risk to seek it.

The proposed action of the Treasury will help only a little way, and in a very limited field, but it may save many a useful life, or at least relieve considerable pain and suffering.

It promises no ultimate gain to the taxpayer—except that he will have a little more than the irreducible minimum with which to care for and relieve his dependents.

I have seen no estimate of decreased revenue to the government. It would probably be impossible to make an estimate.

The average head of a family will sacrifice the last cent of his savings and his capital in order to relieve his family. He has no choice in the taxing field. If he doesn't make a similar sacrifice there the government will distrust and sell his capital assets for him.

It is an intelligent noble chance that the Treasury department is considering. It should go through without obstruction.

Missing the Point

From the Charleston, W. Va., Daily Mail

The administration may get by with it, that is, it may silence the critics and restore a semblance of peace, but it is our guess that the transfer of the physical fitness division from the Office of Civilian Defense to Paul McNutt's catch-all administration was not what the country wanted. By design or accident, and we suspect the former, Washington has missed the point.

It is perhaps true that the job for which the physical fitness division was created fits with more logic into Mr. McNutt's program of many purposes than it did into OCD. It is probably true that much of the criticism leveled against OCD was aroused by this disregard of logic. Unless we badly judge the temper of the country it was not the sole cause of the popular fury.

At least as objectionable was the whole idea of confusing billiards, bowling, codeball, ping pong and the more strenuous parlor games with any of the legitimate functions of government at any time—in war or in peace. No small part of the wrath which descended upon the administration, however much it may have been centered on OCD, was a condemnation of generally frivolous and bondogging conduct of a war.

Nehru's Ambitions Seen As Hindering Proffer to India

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, April 2.—The unfathomable mysteries of India politics were never more perplexing than when its leaders rejected the Cripps offer at first on the ground it would not let them lead their own army against Japan—when they have no leaders.

Troops they had aplenty, about a million of them, 100,000 of whom fought for the British in Malaya or North Africa. But few native officers among them have risen above the position of lieutenant or captain. They have no majors, colonels, generals, capable of handling large masses of troops, no one to plan strategy or make a battleline.

Their own internal political factionalism, furthermore, clearly would prevent elevation of these captains to generals, even if the India leaders were sufficiently unaware of military matters to try it.

The Moslems hate the Sikhs and vice versa to such an extent that the imposition of either faction as a leader over the troops of the other would be like putting Gen. Yamashita over the Australians. War would start right there, and not against the Japs.

Wrong Estimate

The apparent unreasonableness of the stand immediately caused some widespread suspicions in this country that Nehru, the strong man of India, was in fact acting like a petulant child, moping over past wrong of the British, unaware of the greater peril at the gates of Burma.

That was not the estimate of Nehru prevalent in official quarters here. India's politics may be black on the surface but it is never nonsensical—to the Indians. Nehru is a responsible and intelligent leader, fully the equal of British statesmen, a little on the idealistic side, and thereby possibly prone to over-estimate the capacity of Indians—but not as much as represented.

There is reason here to believe Nehru knew what he wanted from the start, and thought the British needed him so badly he could get it if he played his cards cooly. He wanted as much domestic independence as he could get, dominion status if necessary, but he wanted it now.

By insisting on the right of India to lead its own troops into battle, even though it could not do so, he would gain control now. Of course, as soon as he got the right he would have to call on the British generals to furnish the leadership, but at least he would have established his right.

Personal Plight Factor

Nehru's personal political situation also lay behind his peculiar (to the outside) position. He had just been released from jail, for having said, before the Japanese outbreak December 7, that India should not go to war for British imperialism. Naturally to him, the technical point of acquiring the right to ask for British leadership, is therefore of even greater importance. Anything else would be an abasing abandonment of his principle.

He has taken a lot of personal set-backs in the past, at the round table conference, in the India elections, once when Gandhi forced him to accept compromise. He probably could not take another and maintain his position as strong man of India.

Natural Opposition

Cripps knew his plan could not be wholly accepted—for another less technical reason. The Sikhs came out against it first, and naturally so. Since the time of Christ they have ruled the Punjab area, even after they were over-run by Moslem infiltration, simply because they were tougher than the Moslems and enjoyed fighting more than any other form of recreation or business. Under the Cripps plan, or under the democratic idea, they would have to surrender to Moslem leadership, because they are a minority even in their own region.

But Cripps had to appeal to the Moslems, because of their strong position, particularly in the outside world. In India proper the Moslems have about 77,000,000, the Sikhs only 4,500,000 and the Hindus about 240,000,000.

No Kinship with Japs

The British knew the Indians would never go over to the Japs because the British did. They do not consider themselves orientals. They have no kinship with the Japanese. They are friendly to China, but in a neighborly sense, rather than one of kinship.

Their historic policy of passive resistance they know would be less effective against the Japs than it has been against the British. The Japs would merely drag them out into the streets and murder them by the thousands in accordance with established Axis principles of acquiring support.

Physician Terms Diet Only a Small Factor in Treating Arthritis Cases

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

The person with chronic arthritis is liable to get it into his head that somewhere, some place, somebody has a single, certain cure for every case. The most important fact for his peace of mind and happiness is for him to know that no single method of treatment, but a combination of different things, with the added effect of time, is the way for him to regain his health.

This attitude about a single thing that will effect a cure may take the form of believing that a certain drug will do it. Of late years, however, with all the emphasis on the value of diet in which tend to ameliorate these digestive conditions are prescribed. On the basis of the nutrition of the arthritic a number of studies have been made concerning the vitamin balance of these individuals. A group of physicians in New England thought they detected a definite vitamin A deficiency. They reported that sixty-five per cent of chronic arthritis showed abnormal dark adaptation curves which might be interpreted as indicating some vitamin A deficiency.

Vitamin B Deficiency

The popular deficiency in the treatment of arthritis today is vitamin B deficiency. Dr. R. O. Muehrer, of St. Louis, Missouri, found that vitamin B was sometimes rejected by the arthritic and was deficient in the diet. While it has not been proved that vitamin B is as much of a specific as is popularly believed, results with a vitamin B reinforced diet have been quite successful in obtaining some measure of relief for these patients.

To sum up the question of a diet for the arthritic: we should consider, first, nutrition and, second, digestive disturbances. If there is an overweight condition, a reducing diet is indicated, and if there is an underweight condition, a re-enforced diet is indicated. But remember, diet is only a small part of the treatment of chronic arthritis.

Questions and Answers

Mrs. L. T. — What causes the ankles to swell during the day? Would rubber stockings help the condition? What is the cause of a very dry tongue occasionally on awakening?

Answer: The commonest cause of ankles which swell during the day is varicose veins. In case the swollen ankles are due to varicose veins, rubber stockings are beneficial. A dry tongue is possibly an indication of anemia.

Now as to diet, some people with arthritis are overweight, but most of them are underweight. The object of most diets in arthritis is not a specific one, but simply to overcome the bad nutrition of the arthritic. The old idea that meat and proteins should not be used has long since been abandoned.

Many students of the diet believe that digestive complaints such as flatulence, constipation and nausea indicate that the nutrition is disturbed at the base and diets

TODAY'S VICTORY GARDEN-GRAPH

FOR A LONG SEASON OF SWEET CORN MAKE SUCCESSIVE PLANTINGS ABOUT 10-DAYS APART

Long corn season in victory garden

LONG CORN SEASON IN VICTORY GARDEN

When space permits, sweet corn should be included in the family vegetable garden. This is one vegetable which must be fresh to be at its best. Both the quality and flavor deteriorate quickly after the ears are pulled from the plant.

In both white and yellow sorts there are early, mid-season and late varieties.

As illustrated in the Garden-Graph, the way to have sweet corn all summer is to make successive plantings. It is advisable to plant corn in several short rows or blocks rather than in one long row. The pollen does not fertilize the ears well when planted in a single row, as the pollen is carried by the wind.

Corn should not be planted until the soil and weather have had an opportunity to become thoroughly warmed. The seed frequently rots in cold, damp ground and the seedling plants are checked by cold weather so that later plantings do better.

Maximum prices have been fixed for motion picture theater admissions in Canada, reports to the Department of Commerce say.

Prospects for Ecuadorian rubber exports, even of inferior quality, are exceedingly bright for 1942, the Department of Commerce reports.

4-H Clubs Will Observe Mobilization Week Here

Boys and Girls To Enlist To Assist in the War Program

"Mobilization Week" will be held by the 4-H clubs throughout the United States from April 5 to 11, to enlist the all-out efforts of members for the war program. Among the aims of the boys and girls will be the production and conservation of food for home and abroad.

The 4-H members are planning to put their full force into the campaigns for saving various materials badly needed for victory. They will collect iron, brass, aluminum, rubber, burlap, paper and rags, and with the proceeds buy defense stamps and bonds. The "Save for Victory" campaign also includes utilizing farm fuel wood; buying only what is needed and participating in the various conservation programs in their own communities.

Special emphasis will be placed on keeping themselves fit for whatever may confront them; preparing themselves in useful mechanical and technical skills; making the needs and requirements of the victory program understood; and on good citizenship in a democracy and why it should be defended at all costs.

Local Clubs Included

The 550 members of the 4-H Girls clubs of Allegany county, under the direction of Miss Margaret Loar, assistant home demonstration agent, have also pledged to raise more tomatoes, leafy green and yellow vegetables and small fruits in their victory gardens; enroll in Red Cross courses; train food demonstration teams to help educate the public on health and nutrition; take care of their clothing, sewing machine and cooking equipment; so it will last a long time, and eliminate all activities that are not essential under war conditions.

Members of the fifteen Boys 4-H clubs of Allegany county, composed of 300 boys, with Harry W. Beggs in charge, are organizing 4-H Poultry, Pig and Dairy Calf clubs; sponsoring rural electrification contests; as well as having victory gardens and health programs.

The 4-H members ages range from ten to twenty-one and the Junior Extension Club from sixteen and above.

In connection with the observance of Mobilization Week the following clubs will meet:

At 7:30 o'clock this evening the Union Grove Girls club at the home of Ione and Dorothy Miller; at 8 o'clock the boys club at the club house; tomorrow at 10 a. m. the Bowling Green Boys club at the home of William Dicken.

Junior Extension 4-H Club To Hold Dance on May 2

Committee Is Appointed To Obtain Hall and Select Orchestra

A May day dance will be held May 2 by members of the Junior Extension 4-H club of Cresaptown. The committee to arrange for the hall and orchestra for the semi-formal affair were appointed at a meeting of the group Wednesday evening at the home of Miss Florence Thompson. They include William Shumaker, Frank Morgan, Reta Ryan, Sue Jones, Olin Brode, Mary Hardinger, Jane Gilchrist and William Powell.

"In war as in peace, agriculture is the basis of industry," R. F. McHenry, county farm agent, declared in speaking on "Farmers Defense." Another thought he stressed was land is the greatest physical possession. Also in line with the theme of the meeting of "Food Will Win the War and Write the Peace," Miss Maude A. Bean, county home demonstration agent, spoke on "Foods and Nutrition" showing charts and distributing pamphlets, she stressed the importance of correct food habits.

The Victory pins were presented to each member who enrolled for the mobilization week program.

Miss Margaret Loar, assistant home demonstration agent, announced the fifteenth anniversary of the Girls 4-H Trail and the annual style review would be a joint celebration. The show pageant has been postponed until May 18.

The Boys 4-H Federation annual banquet will be held April 17 at St. Luke's church, Harry Beggs announced.

The skating party to be held for all members of the county April 8, by the Bedford Road club was discussed.

Sara Jane Long and David Brown were visitors at the meeting. Refreshments were served by Miss Thompson assisted by Mary Morgan and Margaret Ringler.

BEAUTY ON THE JUNK PILE

Take it easy, boys, don't push. Nobody's thrown these lovely creatures on the scrap heap. Bernice Walker and Mary Smith are volunteer workers in the "Scrap for Victory Week" campaign in Pittsburgh, Cal. That discarded buzz saw makes a pretty nifty hat for Mary, while Bernice toys around with a couple of practice bombs once used by the air force.

CARE IS ADVISED IN REPORTING SKILLS

Announcing the distribution of occupational questionnaires (Form 311) to men who registered on Feb. 16, Colonel Henry C. Stanwood, state director of selective service, urged that they give careful thought to their skills, experience and aptitudes when filling out these forms so that the best possible use of their services may be made in the Nation's war effort.

The questionnaire, which is being distributed to February 16 registrants by their local boards, later will be sent to registrants of the first and second registrations and those of future registrations, the director said. Its purpose is an inventory of the present employment activities of registrants and of their skills or abilities. It has no connection with, and is not to be confused with, the regular Selective Service Questionnaire (Form 40) which is sent to all registrants to obtain data on which selective service classification is based. Colonel Stanwood emphasized.

The data obtained through the occupational questionnaire, the director said, will be forwarded through State headquarters to the National Roster of Scientific and Specialized Personnel and to the United States Employment Service. It will be used by these federal Miss Sebree will speak on directing an A Capella Choir.

The A Capella Choir of Fort Hill high school, which is directed by Miss Sebree, will participate in the Junior program to be given during the afternoon. The first of the four numbers the choir will sing will be "Praise the Lord" by Kosetz, the required number for the A Capella group at the Junior Festival held March 21 in Cumberland; other selections will be "All Through the Night," arranged by Lutkin; "Spring for the ultimate purpose of achieving a more complete and efficient utilization of the nation's manpower in the war production program.

The choir has been organized six years and first entered the festival three years ago when it was held in Cumberland for the first time. This year was the fourth consecutive time it has received a "superior rating." Other festival entries were at Frederick and Bethesda.

Doris Elizabeth Gross (Chapman), vs. Roy C. Chapman, No. 18592 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Allegany County, Maryland.

The object of this suit is to procure an annulment of the marriage of the plaintiff to the defendant, Roy C. Chapman. The Bill alleges that the parties were married on the 22nd day of February, 1938, in Cumberland, Allegany County, Maryland, and that at the time of said marriage, the defendant had been previously married to Daisy Winkelman on the 8th day of April, 1928, and that at the time the defendant married the plaintiff, this prior existing marriage between the defendant and Daisy Winkelman had not been annulled nor were these parties divorced; that there were no children born as a result of the marriage ceremony between the plaintiff and the defendant; and that the defendant, Roy C. Chapman, is a non-resident of the State of Maryland. It is thereupon this 11th day of March, 1942, by the Circuit Court for Allegany County, Maryland, in Equity, ordered that the plaintiff, by causing a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper published in Allegany County, Maryland, notice in each of four successive weeks between the 15th day of April, 1942, and the 15th day of May, 1942, of the order of the court, and that the court should not be passed as prayed.

True Copy. Test: ROBERT JACKSON, Clerk.

Over-Sensitive Girl Claims She Can't Make "Hit"

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX
Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage—Distributed by King Features Syndicate, Inc.

"I think I'm the most unhappy girl who ever lived," writes Miserable. "I'm terribly shy, sensitive and so afraid to meet people because I think they'll find me dull and a bore."

"Some call me prettier than the average girl. I've had a high-school education and have nice clothes and a lovely home, and dance well. But I'm so sensitive that I never make a hit."

"If I go to a dance, I imagine my partner is trying to get rid of me, and if someone doesn't cut in immediately, I make some sort of excuse to leave him. No boy has ever really loved me."

"It's gotten so that no one will even invite me anymore, because they know how shy I am. Will you please answer this letter, because I'm sure you never had a letter like this one before," the letter concludes.

If I had a penny for every letter I've had almost exactly like yours, I'd be rich. And while I'm always sympathetic with bashful, lonely girls, I'm going to give you a scolding.

The chief reason you're unhappy and lonesome is that you think too much of yourself, your shyness and sensitiveness. If you started with the idea of making the people you meet have a good time, and forget your own feelings, you'd probably be a great social success.

Not every girl is prettier than the average. Some have the handicap of downright ugliness to overcome. Yet, even with that, people like to have them around.

You dance well, your clothes are pretty and you have a nice home. For goodness sake, what are you "miserable" over? You should see some of those wretched homes that they can't invite their friends to come to see them. Every penny they make is required to feed the family and pay the rent, and they're as shabby as scarecrows, never going anywhere on that account.

Must Forget Self

First, try to forget yourself, then do something to make things pleasant for other people. Offer your help to the Red Cross. There never was a time in history when co-operation was needed more than it is at present. Ask your church what you can do there to help.

Get busy, lend a hand, and stop thinking how sensitive and misunderstood you are. Perhaps there's a mother in your neighborhood who is overworked. Offer your services to her to care for her children.

CAN'T KEEP GRANDMA IN HER CHAIR

She's as Lively as a Youngster—Now her Backache is better

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys. The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

while she goes to the movie for a silver platter — things just do little recreation. Or perhaps you can help some child with his lessons. Any one of these things is more productive of happiness than coddling one's miseries.

R-U-AWARE?Frick Company Plans Great Expansion

UNIONTOWN, Pa., April 2 (AP)—Progress on a multi-million dollar expansion program to provide additional millions of tons of soft coal for war-busy steel mills was disclosed by the H. C. Frick Coke Company, the world's largest producer of bituminous coal.

During an inspection tour of the rich Connellsville coke region by Harry Moses, president of the United States steel subsidiary, a spokesman announced that one idle field of more than 50,000,000 tons near Connellsville and another of equal size in Greene county, across the Monongahela river, are being tapped.

In the Leisenring field near Connellsville, a sixty-year old tipple, idle for fifteen years, will be knocked down Saturday to make way for a new one and workmen are remodeling 1890 dwellings for 800 miners. Nearby a second pit is being prepared.

Jobless Insurance Payments Increase

WASHINGTON, April 2 (AP)—Conversion of industrial plants to war production has been accompanied by a sharp increase in unemployment insurance payments, the Federal Security Board reports. Payments by states and territories amounted to $81,000,000 during the first two months of this year, nearly one-fourth of the total for all of 1941.

Payments in February were $39,900,000, about three percent less than in January.

Paul V. McNutt, federal security administrator, said this might indicate that unemployment due to plant conversion might be slackening, at least temporarily.

Payments in February by states showing increases over the same month a year ago and the percentage of change, included:

Maryland, $330,000 and twenty-three percent; Tennessee, $618,800 and eighty.

Tobacco Co. Officers To Draw Big Bonuses

JERSEY CITY, N. J., April 2 (AP)—A group of stockholders failed in an attempt to limit the bonuses of George Washington Hill, Sr., president and three vice presidents, at a stormy annual meeting of American Tobacco Company shareholders.

By a vote of 2,044,119 shares against 113,500, the stockholders rejected a resolution introduced by John Gilbert New York, which would have limited the bonuses of Hill to $100,000 annually and of the vice presidents to $50,000 annually. The vice presidents were not identified.

Paul M. Hahn, a vice president who presided at the meeting, said Hill received a $165,000 bonus last year plus his regular salary of $120,000 and vice presidents got $100,886 plus their regular salaries of $50,000.

Great Britain's former output of 13,000,000 cases of Scotch whisky annually has been cut to 5,400,000.
